Llámele paro o boycott

Sea cual fuere el nombre que use para describir la acción que está siendo tomada este día 1ro de mayo, el resultado es el mismo: la creación de más división y odio. Algo que comenzó años atrás con la persecución de personas indocumentadas (ilegales) se ha expandido en un movimiento para proteger los derechos de todos los inmigrantes como resultado de una medida siendo considerada en Washington que hará a los inmigrantes legales y hasta a los ciudadanos criminales por ayudar a cualquier persona sin los papeles apropiados.

Mientras que algunas personas están satisfechas que esta controversia ha abierto la comunicación en el muy serio tema de reforma de inmigración, otros piensan que no ha sido hecho correctamente.

Comprendemos las razones por las cuales la gente arriesga hasta el morir en el proceso de entrar en este país y quisiéramos que no fuese así pero, presionando a los comerciantes por no cerrar el 1ro de mayo e infundir temor, no es la mejor forma de obtener compasión por la causa.

Entonces, a un productor de música británico se le ocurrió la ridícula idea de grabar el Himno Nacional en español, añadiendo más gasolina al fuego. Ellos tomaron la música del Star Spangled Banner y escribieron una letra completamente diferente del original haciéndolo una burla.

Si queremos ser respetados, debemos mostrar respeto y obedecer las leyes y la cultura del país – y esto incluye el Himno Nacional.

Call it stoppage or boycott

Whatever name we use to describe the action being taken on this 1st day of May, the result is the same: the creation of more division and hatred. What started years ago targeting undocumented (illegal) aliens has expanded into a movement protecting the rights of all immigrants as a result of a measure being considered in Washington that will make legal immigrants and even citizens criminals for aiding anyone without the proper papers.

While some people are satisfied that this controversy has opened the communication on the very serious topic of immigration reform, others agree that it was not done the right way.

We understand the reasons for which people risk dying in order to enter this country and wish things did not have to be that way but, pressuring businesses for not shutting down on May 1st and instilling fear, is not the way to gain sympathy for the cause.

Then, a British producer came up with the ridiculous idea of recording the National Anthem in Spanish adding more fuel to the fire. They took the Star Spangled Banner music and wrote lyrics totally different from the original making a mockery of it.

If we want to be respected, we must show respect and abide by the laws and culture of this land – and that includes the National Anthem.

Lantigua logra aumentar los fondos para Lawrence en el presupuesto del 2007

El presupuesto estatal para el año fiscal del 2007 que fue aprobado por la Cámara de Representantes incluye aumentos muy significativos para las escuelas de Lawrence y organizaciones sin fines lucrativos, así como el subsidio de programas diseñados para proveer asistencia a los votantes en los colegios electorales de la ciudad.

El Representante Estatal William Lantigua (D-Lawrence) declaró que las Escuelas Públicas de Lawrence – que ya reciben más de $123 millones – recibieron uno de los aumentos más altos en Massachusetts, casi $6 millones más sobre el total del año pasado.

“En un año en que las comunidades de todo el estado están luchando por conseguir fondos adecuados, me satisface que el liderazgo otorgó mis peticiones para Lawrence,” dijo Lantigua.

Lantigua también dijo que la distribución de asistencia local refleja su compromiso hacia la educación y los servicios sociales. Además de gastos para las escuelas públicas, el presupuesto incluye $19.5 millones en fondos para Greater Lawrence Technical School. Lawrence también recibirá una porción de $300,000 destinados a establecer la “Campaña para la Maestría”, un programa estatal que ayudará a mejorar los resultados de las pruebas de MCAS que son necesarios para poderse graduar de la escuela secundaria.

Our House for Design and Technology recibió $1 millón para sus programas educacionales y de finanzas.

“Estos fondos son críticos para nuestra misión de cumplir con las necesidades económicas y educacionales del pueblo de Lawrence,” dijo la Directora del Programa Our House Tamar Kotelchuck. “Estamos muy agradecidos del continuo apoyo del Representante Lantigua. Nunca hubiésemos podido alcanzar esta meta sin él.”

La New England Puerto Rican Association, la

cual organiza festivales culturales locales y campañas de registro de votantes, recibió $125,000, más del doble de lo que recibió el año pasado.

Casa Dominicana y su programa de educación comunitaria y cultural también vio sus fondos aumentados de $60,000 a $125,000. El Lawrence Learning Center y Community Services, que ofrecen clases de inglés y de preparación para la equivalencia de la escuela secundaria, fue otorgado $100,000 cuando este año recibieron $60,000.

Arlington Community Trabajando, una corporación que trata con el desarrollo comunitario y se enfoca en crear un ambiente más sano y limpio, recibió $60,000. La YWCA de Lawrence y Family Service, Inc. cada uno recibió $50,000.

Food for the World Pantry recibió $100,000, casi el doble del año pasado. Neighbors in Need, otro grupo de abogacía que provee comidas a los residentes desaventajados de la ciudad, tiene ahora $53,000 de más.

Lantigua dijo que él está particularmente satisfecho con la aprobación de la Cámara para gastar $43,700 en la compra de 24 computadoras, una para cada colegio electoral de Lawrence. Los voluntarios utilizarán información guardada en ellas para asistir a los votantes con preguntas sobre su elegibilidad y poder ayudarlos a encontrar el lugar apropiado donde ellos votar.

Lantigua dijo que él continuará buscando opciones de fondos a medida que el debate se mueve hacia el Senado y cuando la legislatura considere otros temas adicionales en el presupuesto durante el verano y el otoño.

“Por supuesto que estoy desilusionado que algunas organizaciones se quedaron afuera,” nos dijo. “Ellas son igualmente merecedoras de apoyo y continuaré luchando por ellas en el Senado y en el presupuesto suplementario.”

Charter School recibió una donación de TD Banknorth

Por Alberto Surís

La Fundación Caritativa de TD Banknorth se complace en anunciar que apoya la campaña de recaudación de capital titulada "Construyendo Nuestro Futuro", para renovar y expandir la Lawrence Family Development Charter School, fundada en 1995. El proyecto incluye la adquisición y la renovación del antiguo convento y escuela superior de Saint Anne, localizada en el 400-404 de la Calle Haverhill y la construcción de un nuevo gimnasio en la propiedad.

La contribución de $20,000 de la Fundación Caritativa de TD Banknorth, ayuda a traer el proyecto de la escuela charter, más cerca de su realización, estimada para el mes de septiembre 2006 y permite a la escuela alcanzar la creciente demanda de la educación temprana, así como la de después de las horas de escuela, clases de ciudadanía y de inglés como segundo idioma.

Joanne Sullivan, Vicepresidente Asistente de Relaciones Comunitarias de TD Banknorth está muy impresionada por la dedicación del personal de la Charter School y de los padres que están participando en la campaña de recaudación de fondos. "El componente comunitario es esencial para el éxito de la campaña", dijo Sullivan. De acuerdo con Eduardo Lebrón, un padre y presidente la junta directiva de la Charter School, "los padres han sido capaces de crecer al mismo tiempo que sus hijos y han adquirido las destrezas para contribuir a su comunidad".

Los estudiantes y los empleados están excitados acerca del progreso de las obras en el antiguo High School de Saint Anne, según dijo Patricia Karl, su directora ejecutiva. "Nos sentimos privilegiados de poder admirar la renovación y transformación de estos, que una vez fueron bellos edificios, y ver como una vez más darán la bienvenida a niños y adultos como un centro de aprendizaje para futuras generaciones. Estamos muy agradecidos a la Fundación Caritativa de TD Banknorth por apoyar este proyecto comunitario tan importante".

Semana Hispana celebra Encuentro Cultural

Bandera elaborada por los jóvenes del Comité de Semana Hispana, que refleja que vivimos en una nación de inmigrantes.

La diversidad étnica que se pone de manifiesto en cada rincón de los Estados Unidos y es más palpable en esta ciudad considerada "La ciudad de los Inmigrantes" tuvo su espacio este pasado fin de semana cuando la organización de Semana Hispana, dando continuidad a su calendario de actividades, convirtió los salones del Lawrence Senior Center en una sola nación cuya bandera es la de la confraternidad y la unidad.

Como ya es costumbre en eventos de este tipo no podían faltar los elementos propios de la riqueza cultural de las naciones latinoamericanas, que unida al folclore, la música, las costumbres y el colorido de sus banderas.

Los asistentes pudieron encontrar diferentes mesas que mostraban artesanías de países como Ecuador, El Salvador, Puerto Rico, República Dominicana, Colombia que guardan historia, idiosincrasia, desarrollo y superación.

Mientras que por su lado los integrantes del Comité de la Juventud de Semana Hispana realizaron un proyecto donde resaltaron el arte y la cultura de países como Brasil, España, Costa Rica,

Celebran Octavo Simposio Anual Agenda de la Mujer Dedicado a la Violencia Contra La Mujer

Este próximo 6 de mayo, sábado, se va a realizar el octavo Simposio de "Mujeres & Política" organizado por Agenda de Mujer 2006. En esta ocasión el tema del simposio es Venciendo Una Cultura de Violencia: "Soy Sobreviviente". La actividad será celebrada en el Lawrence Senior Center, localizado en la 155 de la calle Haverhill, cruzando el Parque Campagnone, de 8:30 AM a 3:30 PM.

La palabra "política" para el propósito de Agenda de Mujer no está limitada a las políticas electorales, sino que incluye temas orientados al activismo comunitario y cómo se refleja en la mujer. Agenda de Mujer realiza anualmente un evento donde lo más importante es identificar el status de las mujeres líderes del Valle de Merrimack, Massachussets.

Agenda de Mujer surgió en 1999, con la visión de planear y organizar un diálogo anual - llamado simposio - donde las mujeres líderes a nivel local puedan enfocarse sobre ellas mismas y celebrar cuán importante es el rol que juegan al incidir en todos los aspectos de nuestras comunidades. Aunque ciertamente este evento solo se realiza una vez al año, esto no ha sido impedimento para ser visible ante los responsables de hacer política tanto en el sector público como privado, y dar a conocer cómo esto afecta al sector femenino como individuos, al igual que a sus familias y sus comunidades.

Este año el esfuerzo primordial es atacar la violencia contra la mujer a través de un diálogo en el cual las mujeres maduras podrán conversar con las jóvenes para desarrollar estrategias para prevenir que la mujer caiga víctima de la violencia y de aliento a las mujeres abusadas que sí pueden escapar.

Este año el comité organizador está compuesto además de la Concejal por Toda la Ciudad la Dra. Nilka Álvarez-Rodríguez, fundadora del evento, por Patricia Sánchez-Reyes y Martina Cruz, Miembros del Comité Escolar; June Black de la Oficina del Congresista Marty Meehan; Maribel Serate y Noris González de Jardín de Opciones; Janice Burkholder, de la Oficina de la Senadora Susan Tucker; Vilma Lora de la YWCA de Greater Lawrence; Susan Santos de Ministerio Mujeres de Excelencia; Grisel Silva - Concejal por el Distrito B; Luz Rosado, Nélida Vatcher, Martha Medina y Martha Vélez, del

Lawrence Senior Center; además cinco líderes comunitarias quien son Haydeé Cuadrado, Annia Lembert, Felicita Caminero, Marta Rentas y Doris Anziani.

Otro importante detalle sobre Agenda de Mujer, es el objetivo de mejorar las condiciones de nuestras comunidades por medio del reconocimiento a aquellas heroínas ignoradas quienes trabajan incansablemente hasta llegar al final de la meta propuesta. Cada año estos reconocimientos son hechos a través de dos tipos de premios.

El premio "María García Liriano" donde se escoge a una mujer que ha sobresalido y roto las barreras para dignificar su condición de ser humano, que este año se le presenta a la comunicadora, escritora y poeta Beatriz Pérez.

que este año servir para homenaje de Sandy Almonte, María Mónica Alvarez, Paula Callanan, Zoila Gómez Díaz, Rebecca A. Hall, Anna Ruth Sullivan, Carolyn Traficanti y Rev. Gladys Tucker.

La importancia y el propósito en general de "Agenda de Mujer" es abrir los ojos sobre la fortaleza interna de las mujeres a nivel local, y celebrar la influencia que estas tienen o pueden tener, sobre decisiones que afectan sus vidas diariamente en el modo que legisla el gobierno y en la provisión de servicios de organizaciones con o sin fines de lucro.

Las mujeres a nivel local son alentadas a hacer uso de sus derechos constitucionales y de esta manera poder cuestionar e influenciar sobre las acciones del gobierno, así como también, sobre las acciones de organizaciones privadas donde ellas trabajan o de las cuales reciben servicios.

Anuncian Preparativos de ceremonia de Inauguración del Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte

Por Beatriz Pérez

Luego de una lucha que se inició en el mes de febrero cuando el Consulado Dominicano en la persona del honorable cónsul Dominicó Cabral solicitó ante el Concejo Municipal que considerara la posibilidad de poner el nombre de Juan Pablo Duarte a una porción de la Broadway, petición que fue aprobada por el Comité de Ordenanzas, y luego desestimada por el Concejo en pleno.

Sin embargo luego de que Cabral delegara en un comité que se creó, durante una reunión, convocada por el Consulado y de los trabajos realizados por dicho comité, el 21 de marzo los dominicanos y dominicanas de la ciudad hicieron vibrar las paredes de la Sala Capitular cuando la propuesta fue aprobada 5-3.

Desde ese mismo instante tanto el comité que es coordinado por José Ayala, como el cónsul dominicano iniciaron los trabajos de preparación de lo que será la inauguración del Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte, en el tramo comprendido entre las calles Haverhill y Essex.

Los detalles de lo que será la ceremonia inaugural del Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte fueron dados a conocer durante una conferencia de prensa realizada en Casa Dominicana el Cónsul General de la República Dominicana en Boston, Dominicó Cabral y miembros del Comité pro-Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte.

La ceremonia está pautada para este domingo, 7 de mayo, de 3-5pm en el tramo comprendido entre las calles Valley y Essex. En el evento estará presente la Licenciada Alejandrina Germán, Secretaria de Educación de la República Dominicana. De igual modo se espera la presencia de los oficiales electos de la ciudad y de otras comunidades circundantes.

En la rueda de prensa el cónsul dominicano aseguró que desde el principio la propuesta de que a una porción de la Broadway se le asignara el nombre de Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte, tenía la intención de reconocer en la figura y el legado de la Patria Dominicana, el desarrollo, la superación y las contribuciones hechas por los dominicanos que residen en esta ciudad.

“En el estado de Massachusetts sería la primera vez en poner el nombre de un héroe dominicano a una porción de una calle tan importante, y donde hay mayor concentración de comerciantes dominicanos”, dijo

Asimismo, Cabral recordó que nunca se pretendió cambiar el nombre a la

Broadway, por el de Juan Pablo Duarte, sino que lo que se buscaba era reconocer en el patrón dominicano, la herencia, el honor y la dignidad que nos legó a través de la libertad y nuestra dominicanidad.

Sin dudas que el martes 21 de marzo quedará marcada en las páginas de la historia de Lawrence, luego de que el Concejo dijera “Sí” a la solicitud de que una porción de la Broadway de forma simbólica fuese llamado “Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte”.

De igual modo el Cónsul General de la República Dominicana expresó su agradecimiento a los que esa noche llegaron a la Sala Capitular a defender y apoyar la petición.

Destacándose entre ellos líderes políticos, comerciantes, estudiantes y gente de otras nacionalidades, abogaron para que el Boulevard Juan Pablo Duarte fuese una realidad.

El diplomático dominicano manifestó su gratitud a los Concejales Patrick Blanchette, presidente del Concejo; la Concejal por de que su tasa fija nunca aumentará y se mantendrá al 5.75% durante la vida de su préstamo hipotecario.

Además de un ahorro de miles de dólares, el hacer un cambio en su hipoteca podría significar que su pago mensual hipotecario se mantenga bajo. Su decisión para refinanciar debería depender en cuanto tiempo usted vivirá en su hogar, la tasa de interés que su actual hipoteca tiene, la fecha en que el interés empezará a variar, el nivel al que puede subir el interés y si su hipoteca tiene una multa sobre prepago.

Consideré los siguientes puntos para evaluar si una hipoteca de tasa fija es para usted y consulte con su agente de financiamiento hipotecario para revisar sus opciones.

Tasa de Interés Anual (APR)

El APR es una expresión en término de porcentaje que refleja la tasa de interés más el costo agregado para obtener el préstamo, tal como puntos, honorarios y prima de seguro (si aplican). Si no hay costos involucrados al obtener el préstamo además de la tasa de interés, entonces el APR sería igual a la tasa de interés.

Hipoteca con Interés Variable

Hipoteca que le permite al prestamista ajustar la tasa de interés periódicamente basándose en los cambios de un índice específico.

Una hipoteca de tasa fija, por ejemplo, es una buena opción si usted vivirá en su hogar por más de cinco años. Revise sus opciones y determine si una tasa de interés baja sería de beneficio para usted y su familia.

Préstamo Fijo a 30 años

Un préstamo en el cual la tasa de interés permanece igual por ese periodo. Amortiza el principal y el interés por el periodo de 30 años y ofrece un pago mensual fijo que durará durante la vida del préstamo.

Hipoteca de Tasa Fija

Hipoteca en la que el interés no cambia durante el periodo del préstamo.

Muchos dueños de casa, que tomaron ventaja de obtener su casa con una hipoteca de interés variable, se enfrentarán a tasas de interés más altas en el futuro cercano. Una hipoteca de tasa fija, por ejemplo, es una buena opción si usted vivirá en su hogar por más de cinco años. Revise sus opciones y determine si una tasa de interés baja sería de beneficio para usted y su familia.

Un día sin mexicanos entre las ventas y alquiler de DVD más populares en Estados Unidos

Mientras activistas llaman a estudiantes y trabajadores a unirse el 1 de mayo a la protesta "Un día sin inmigrantes", un film del 2004 con casi el mismo título recobra vigencia al destacar el peso de los inmigrantes en Estados Unidos.

La cinta independiente "A Day Without a Mexican" (Un día sin mexicanos) recaudó menos de 5 millones de dólares en la taquilla, pero el alquiler de las copias ha reportado 13 millones de dólares en seis semanas, y un nuevo aviso publicitario ha sido desplegado en sitios de trabajo.

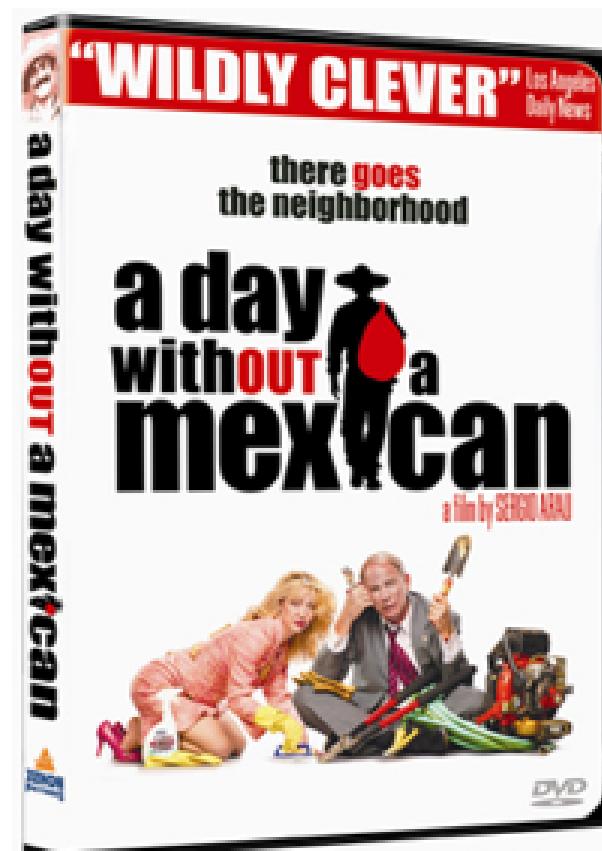

Algunos activistas incluso lucen camisetas con el logo de la película impreso: la silueta de un hombre humilde con una bolsa al hombro.

"Se ha hablado mucho sobre la película, ha servido como herramienta (a la causa migratoria), una especie de referencia", comenta Yareli Arizmendi, quien protagonizó y coescribió la historia junto a su esposo Sergio Arau, director del film.

Arizmendi, de origen cubano mexicano y criada en Estados Unidos, dice que empezó a notar un interés renovado en la película durante las recientes marchas pro migratorias celebradas en marzo en Los Angeles. No sólo vio gente con franelas y pancartas del logo del filme, sino también escuchó consignas inspiradas en la frase clave de la historia: "¿Cómo haces visible lo invisible?".

El mes pasado, el alquiler de las copias subió un 17% en comparación con febrero, apuntó Leigh Savidge, presidenta de la distribuidora Xenon Pictures, que planea una nueva campaña de promoción aprovechando las circunstancias. Su uso ha sido autorizado libremente para activistas, según Arizmendi, aunque la empresa controla cualquier intención lucrativa.

Otra producción, "Walkout" de HBO, también resultó profética, al plantear la historia de miles de estudiantes latinos que boicotean las clases en escuelas de zonas deprimidas de Los Angeles. Fue estrenada el 18 de marzo, una semana antes de que miles, incluyendo escolares, marcharan en la metrópoli californiana.

"A Day Without a Mexican" es una sátira documental que muestra qué sucede cuando tras una neblina desaparecen todos menos uno de los millones de latinos que representan un tercio de la población de California.

La trama muestra los papeles típicos que desempeñan los latinos de California, mayormente mexicanos. Sin ellos, no hay quien cultive frutas, recoja la basura o cuide los jardines. A la larga, el gobierno y las fuerzas públicas colapsan.

Aunque la calidad de la producción ha sido cuestionada, el punto de la cinta queda claro: el estado necesita a los inmigrantes tanto como los inmigrantes necesitan al estado.

Ese es precisamente lo que los activistas quieren probar el 1 de mayo.

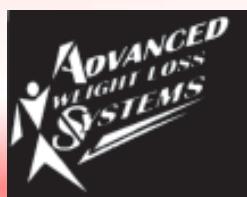

"Algunos argumentan que los inmigrantes se aprovechan de la economía de Estados Unidos. Entonces, si ellos no están aquí, no trabajan, ni compran nada, ¿esencialmente la economía mejorará?", se pregunta Oscar Byanko Sánchez-Quinto, vocero de la Coalición 25 de marzo en Los Angeles. "Vamos a demostrar nuestro poder económico", dice.

"El arte se inspira en la realidad", recuerda Arizmendi.

Pintores dominicanos exponen en Lawrence

Por Beatriz Pérez

Una de las estaciones del año más esperada, ya que su llegada pone punto final a un invierno de mucho frío y la caída a veces descontrolada de la nieve, y asimismo se convierte en el preámbulo al tan esperado verano, el contraste del invierno, tiempo de sol constante y de un ambiente acalorado.

Las flores, el canto de los pájaros, el reverdecer de los árboles, los atardeceres hermosos se conjugan en una exposición presentada la pasada semana en Casa Dominicana, que expresa todo lo que la estación primaveral regala a la naturaleza, "Canto de Primavera".

Los responsables de plasmar en el lienzo la hermosura y el colorido de la primavera son cuatro pintores de origen dominicano que han hecho del arte de la pintura, una forma de honrar a la madre naturaleza.

Esos destacados pintores son: Samuel Terrero, Dinelsa Rodríguez, José Ortiz y Juan Alcántara, quienes con un estilo y una temática diferente honran el renacer y el esplendor de una época maravillosa donde los seres humanos parecen transformarse con su arribo.

La exposición fue auspiciada por el Consulado dominicano y el Ministerio Oasis de Vida, que preside Teófilo Alcántara y Casa Dominicana.

Tal y como expresamos más arriba cada uno de estos artistas del pincel tiene una forma distinta de captar la belleza, a veces abstracta y otras veces concreta, tal es el caso de la destacada pintora Dinelsa Rodríguez considerada como una de las mejores pintoras como artista de espátulas en lienzo al óleo.

Por su parte Terrero quien desde hace varios años con Dinelsa, prefiere la pintura de estilo costumbrista, donde es notorio los paisajes del campo, de elementos propios de regiones hermosas y de ese sabor a campiña que nos recuerda el lugar de donde vinimos.

Esto refleja el interés de Terrero para hacer presente en el lienzo imágenes del costumbrismo dominicano.

Los trazos de bodegones y de rostros que van más allá de miradas que se pierden en la lejanía del tiempo, es para Juan Alcántara un modo quizás de expresar con el pincel lo que no puede hacer debido a sus limitaciones para hablar y escuchar.

Un contraste en esta exposición se hace presente en los trabajos del pintor José Ortiz, quien puede contar con detalles el pasado histórico de cualquier pueblo de la tierra del merengue.

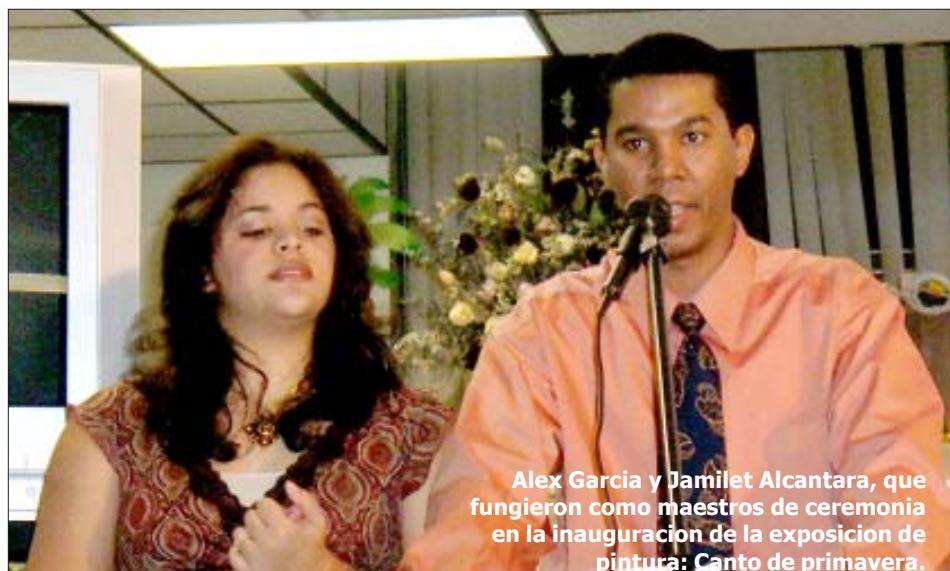

Pero si de contar los antecedentes históricos de los pueblos y las comunidades dominicanas, hay que resaltar el trabajo de José Ortiz quien se ha especializado en narrar la historia dominicana en lienzos.

En la exposición Ortiz presentó trabajos relacionados a la Ciudad de Santiago, su historia, sus antecedentes y las transformaciones que la convierten en una ciudad que ha sido testigo y a veces protagonistas de importantes luchas en procura de cambios sustanciales en la República Dominicana.

En representación del pintor José Ortiz, estuvo presente en la actividad Anyelín García.

Como es de suponer para cada uno de esos pintores el realizar una exposición pictórica no fue su primera experiencia, en lo referente a su trayectoria y experiencia en este tipo de evento, ya que cada uno de ellos ha expuesto sus trabajos en las principales galerías y salas de artes de la República Dominicana. Aunque vale decir que sí fue la primera vez que sus trabajos son expuestos en esta ciudad.

Sus pinturas recorren el mundo, gracias al apoyo que turistas y dominicanos que residen en el exterior, le han brindado al adquirir una obra de estas, lo que ha permitido que hayan logrado un alto valor cultural y económico.

Alex Garcia y Jamilet Alcantara, que fungieron como maestros de ceremonia en la inauguración de la exposición de pintura: Canto de primavera.

Dinelsa Rodriguez, el consul dominicano Dominico Cabral, Juan Alcantara y Samuel Terrero.

Presentes el cónsul dominicano, Dominico Cabral, quien agradeció a los artistas el haber plasmado la belleza de la primavera en el lienzo y por contribuir con el arte y la educación de la República Dominicana y sobre todo por darla a conocer en playas extranjeras. De igual modo, el vicecónsul Frank Tejada y el ex concejal Marcos Devers, entre otros invitados.

Jóvenes caminan para hacer un llamado al cese del abuso y la violencia infantil

Por Beatriz Pérez

El Taller Borinqueño realizó su sexta campaña contra el abuso infantil con una caminata en los alrededores del parque Campagnone, con el objetivo de llamar la atención sobre este grave flagelo que afecta a un sinnúmero de niños en todo el mundo y que tantas vidas ha cobrado.

La actividad se llevó a cabo bajo los lineamientos de la Child Welfare League of America (CWLA por sus siglas en inglés) que es la organización nacional más antigua y más grande, conocida y respetada desde que fue creada en el 1920, con la finalidad de defender los derechos de los niños.

La visión de CWLA, es ver una América donde las familias, los vecindarios, las comunidades y el gobierno trabajen unidos para asegurar que todos los niños tengan la oportunidad de crecer sanos y saludables.

Esta organización ofrece servicios a más de 9 millones de niños abusados y sus familias a través de programas, publicaciones, estudios, conferencias, desarrollo profesional y consultas.

En la tradicional caminata integrantes de Taller Borinqueño que dirige Vanessa Espendez y miembros del Comité de la Juventud de Semana Hispana, portaron réplicas de la bandera diseñada por un joven estudiante de 16 años de edad, residente del Condado de Alameda en California, luego de que la CWLA puso en marcha una campaña pública para crear conciencia y llamar la atención sobre las muertes de niños, víctimas de la violencia con el propósito de reducir el índice de mortalidad infantil provocada por la violencia.

La bandera es de color rojo y presenta a cinco niños, en color azul, tomados de las manos y la figura central está delineada en tiza de color blanco como una manera de destacar a los miles de niños que han perdido la vida a consecuencia de la violencia.

En los últimos tiempos los medios de comunicación han sido portadores de noticias desgarradoras de niños y niñas secuestrados, vilmente asesinados, muchas veces por sus propios padres.

No obstante a esto Vanessa Espendez dijo que las estadísticas han demostrado un descenso en el número de casos anuales de muertes de niños y niñas debido a la violencia y el abuso infantil.

"Si esto es así debemos asegurarnos de que cada día nuestras voces se escuchen más fuerte, con el objetivo de conseguir la erradicación de este mal que no conoce fronteras, ni razas, ni status social", agrega.

Pese al gran número de organizaciones que existen en esta ciudad la participación de estas, en este esfuerzo que por seis años realiza Taller Borinqueño se puede definir como nula, y más aún cuando el tópico de la ola de violencia que afecta a los niños y niñas del mundo, de la cual no escapa esta ciudad, es más que preocupante.

Cerca de 300 organizaciones, 101 ciudades y los 50 estados que auspician el día de la Bandera en Memoria de nuestros niños, ondearon las banderas este pasado viernes 28 de abril y auspiciaron los esfuerzos de CWLA por cuidar y proteger a cada niño a fin de mantenerlos lejos y libres del peligro.

"Para el próximo año nuestra meta es que en este mismo parque se reúnan 10 organizaciones con sus banderas simbolizando el abuso infantil, con solo pedir a Dios que cuide nuestros niños no es suficiente, debemos aliarnos a esta causa activamente y con convicción", manifestó Espendez.

Previo a comenzar la caminata la directora de Taller Borinqueño dijo que ese día caminarían por todos los niños que no pueden hacerlo, porque ya no están con nosotros

En la actividad estuvo presente la Concejala por el Distrito B, Grisel Silva, quien dirigió palabras de aliento y de motivación a las niñas del Taller Borinqueño, diciéndoles que aparte de no permitir ser objeto de abuso de ningún tipo, deben denunciar cualquier acto que se esté cometiendo contra ellos que pueda ser considerado abuso o violencia infantil.

También participó el ex concejal por toda la ciudad Marcos Devers.

CAMPAÑA CONTRA EL ABUSO INFANTIL

AL FINALIZAR LA CAMINATA KAYLA CARRASCO, REINA DEL TALLER BORINQUEÑO DECLAMÓ EL POEMA QUE HA SIDO ADOPTADO COMO PARTE DE LA CAMPAÑA A TRAVÉS DE LA NACIÓN:

Do not stand at my grave and weep.
I am not there, I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow.
I am the diamond's gift in snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain.
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quite birds in circled flight.
I am the soft stars that shine at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry;
I am not there, I did not die.

- Autor desconocido

El Sr. Marcos Devers despidió el evento invitando a los presentes a recapacitar y unir esfuerzos para ayudar a nuestros niños a vivir en un mundo con menos violencia. En sus emotivas palabras pidió que nos comprometíramos a luchar por ver izarse la bandera en memoria de nuestros niños desaparecidos y que el próximo año llenemos este parque de seguidores para la causa.

Vanesa Espendez agradeció la participación de Taller Borinqueño, Juventud Semana Hispana y Lat'N Saintz, a Saed Morales Reina del Movimiento Puertorriqueño, Namiotka Morales Princesa Juvenil de Semana Hispana y Dyanarah Fermin.

MATIAS IN JAIL FOR A GOOD CAUSE

By Alberto Surís

On Wednesday, April 26, area business owners, civic leaders and politicians were locked up by members of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, at Sal's Restaurant on the Riverwalk. A day of fun that resulted in almost $20,000 for the Association, when the detainees collected enough money from their friends to pay for their bales.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association is a voluntary health agency — a dedicated partnership between scientists and concerned citizens aimed at conquering neuromuscular diseases that affect more than a million Americans.

MDA combats neuromuscular diseases through programs of worldwide research, comprehensive medical and community services, and far-reaching professional and public health education.

Matías en la cárcel por una buena causa

Por Alberto Surís

El pasado miércoles, 26 de abril, dueños de negocios del área, líderes cívicos y políticos en general fueron encarcelados por la Asociación de Distrofia Muscular, en el Restaurante Sal's en el Riverwalk. Un día de diversión que resultó en cerca de $20,000 para la asociación, cuando los detenidos colectaron el dinero suficiente de sus amigos para pagar por la fianza.

La Asociación de Distrofia Muscular es una agencia de salud operada por voluntarios — una asociación entre científicos y ciudadanos conscientes dirigida a conquistar las enfermedades neuromusculares que afectan a más de un millón de americanos.

MDA, como se le conoce por sus siglas en inglés, combate enfermedades neuromusculares a través de programas de investigación mundiales, servicio médico y comunitario detallado y educación de salud pública y profesional.

El hecho de que Sal Lupoli es el dueño de Sal's Restaurant, no lo eximió de ser detenido y de pagar por su propia fianza. Junto a él, está Margaret Stevens, de Lawrence, la cual fue detenida hasta que pudo reunir lo suficiente para pagar la fianza.

The fact that Sal Lupoli is the owner of Sal's Restaurant, didn't prevent him from being locked up and had to pay for his bail. Pictured next to him is Margaret Stevens, from Lawrence, who was placed under detention until she could raise her bail among her friends.

UN PUNTO DE VISTA

El mensaje del genio latino en la botella: Un hombre, una mujer, a la vez

Por Paul V. Montesino, PhD
buzonaberto@aol.com

La historia de los derechos humanos en los Estados Unidos está íntimamente conectada con los derechos civiles de sus minorías. No otra nación moderna, en nuestra opinión, despliega un coraje similar en hacerse consciente de las demandas de aquellos ciudadanos directamente afectados. Y parte de esa tradición es tomar nota de cómo esa conciencia crece para convertirse en una noble causa y en ciertos casos una batalla que va más allá de su origen hasta que las violaciones que la crean se alivian. Toma tiempo, desde luego, pero el resultado es inevitable.

Cada cruzada por los derechos comienza lentamente, tal vez a nivel individual, aislado, ignorado o intencionalmente machacado por la mayoría indiferente que no quiere comprometer su control del poder. Igual que un Genio que sale de la botella de conciencia que lo atrapaba, los primeros beneficiarios están usualmente dispersos y tratando de sobrevivir ante la inseguridad y la hostilidad de aquellos que desean triturarlos para mantener su status quo. Entonces, después de cierto período, los alzados se hacen conscientes de los unos y los otros y de su importancia y poder, adquieren ímpetu y se unen en una batalla que es reconocida, como dijera Werner Erhard sobre el fin de la inanición en "El Proyecto Hambre," una idea cuyo tiempo ha arribado. El resultado es unos nuevos Estados Unidos.

Después que las trece colonias norteamericanas se liberaron del yugo Británico la primera prueba verdadera se presentó cuando el Congreso de los Estados Unidos aprobó la Enmienda Trece a su Constitución: La abolición de la esclavitud. Desde luego, al otro día de pasar esa enmienda las vidas de los esclavos en los Estados Unidos no se hicieron maravillosas de repente. Los esclavos liberados tuvieron que obtener su propia independencia y modo de vida una persona a la vez, un día a la vez en una escuela, un trabajo y una comunidad a la vez.

Aquellos cuyas vidas económicas estaban o se sentían amenazadas por el nuevo estado de cosas no se tiraron a morir; ellos y muchas generaciones que le sucedieron usaron cuantos trucos pudieron para retener sus privilegios ganados ilegítimamente o no: "En respuesta a esa ley, algunos estados de la unión promulgaron 'códigos negros' que intentaban limitar los derechos civiles de los esclavos liberados recientemente." En 1868 la Enmienda Catorce se aprobó para contrarrestar esos "códigos negros" y asegurar que no Estado "hará o esforzará ley alguna que reduzca los privilegios o prerrogativas de los ciudadanos de los Estados Unidos... [O] desposee a las personas de su vida, libertad o propiedad sin protección adecuada de la ley... [O] negar a persona alguna dentro de su jurisdicción la protección igual de las leyes." (Fuente: www.law.cornell.edu)

La próxima causa civil mayor fue la aceptación de las mujeres en las casillas votantes de la nación. Encabezadas por muchas del calibre moral de Susan B. Anthony, las mujeres se unieron para demandar el derecho de escoger nuestros líderes, ellas mismas incluidas, y éste fue el comienzo de la causa que condujo al llamado movimiento de "liberación femenina" que eventualmente incluyó en nuestros días los derechos al aborto y la protección contra el acoso sexual entre otros.

"El movimiento de la lucha por el sufragio femenino ganó fuerza después de aprobarse la Enmienda 15 a la Constitución que dio el voto a los hombres negros pero no a mujer alguna. El movimiento duró setenta años, desde la primera convención formal de mujeres de Seneca Falls, New York, en 1848, hasta que se aprobó la Enmienda Diecinueve a la Constitución en 1920. La mayoría de las personas que se habían opuesto al sufragio femenino creían que las mujeres eran menos inteligentes y menos capaces de tomar decisiones políticas que los hombres. Ellos aducían que los hombres eran capaces de representar a las mujeres mucho mejor que ellas se podían representar a sí mismas. Algunos temían que la participación de las mujeres en la política conduciría al fin de la vida familiar." (Fuente: Wikipedia) ¿No suena eso familiar? Desde luego, el concepto de "vida familiar" pasaría después por muchas fases de definiciones sociales diferentes.

Pero mayores batallas de derechos civiles se visualizaban en el horizonte. "En 1954, la Corte Suprema tomó una decisión trascendental: En Brown contra la Junta de educación de Topeka, Kansas, la corte invalidó un estatuto que permitía a las ciudades de más de 15,000 habitantes de Kansas mantener escuelas separadas para negros y blancos y dictó en su lugar que toda segregación en las escuelas públicas era "intrínsecamente desigual" y que a los negros bloqueados de asistir a escuelas públicas con estudiantes blancos se les negaba la protección igualitaria de la Enmienda Catorce que garantizaba esos derechos contra los llamados "códigos negros."

"Al momento de la decisión de 1954, las leyes en 17 estados sureños y otros que los bordeaban (Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, y Missouri,) mas el Distrito de Columbia, requerían que las escuelas elementales estuvieran segregadas."

Pero eso no era todo. La legislación más prominente de derechos civiles desde la reconstrucción fue el Acta de Derechos Civiles de 1964. Decisiones de la Corte Suprema en aquella época limitaban la imposición de la Enmienda Catorce a acciones estatales. Como consecuencia el Congreso, usando su poder de regular el comercio interestatal aprobó el Acta de Derechos Civiles de 1964 que declaraba que "la discriminación basada en la raza, el color,

La demanda por cambios a nivel nacional crece por mejores escuelas secundarias

Los Estados Unidos están ante una crisis: Demasiados jóvenes no se gradúan de escuela secundaria. Muchos se gradúan sin estar preparados para la universidad o para trabajar.

Notre Dame High School (NDHS) está haciendo frente a la crisis en el Valle de Merrimack para familias de bajos ingresos, primordialmente estudiantes latinos que aspiran ir a college y obtener éxito profesional.

NDHS, una escuela nueva e innovadora escuela secundaria que es de preparatoria universitaria en Lawrence, tiene un programa de estudios al modelo de "Cristo Rey" por el cual los estudiantes son motivados, entrenados y supervisados para que asistan a clases cuatro días a la semana y trabajen en oficinas de compañías locales un día a la semana. Estas posiciones profesionales permiten que los estudiantes ganen el 70% del costo de su matrícula y adquieran experiencia de trabajo y para el resto de sus vidas a medida que se preparan para la universidad y futuras carreras.

Los fondos son proveídos primordialmente por Bill y Melinda Gates, fundadores de La Fundación Bill & Melinda Gates (www.gatesfoundation.org). Esta fundación ha dedicado más de un billón de dólares para apoyar la creación de más de 1600 escuelas secundarias de alta calidad, incluyendo Notre Dame High School.

- Participan en reuniones en las que se invita a los contribuyentes a compartir sus impresiones sobre sus experiencias con el IRS.
- Refieren a los contribuyentes que contactan a los paneles a las oficinas del IRS más apropiadas para tratar sus casos particulares.

"Mientras que el IRS continúa examinando las necesidades de los contribuyentes en el área de servicios, el Panel en Defensa del Contribuyente ha surgido como una fuente vital para recopilar información y brindarla desde el punto de vista de los contribuyentes", dijo Nina E. CHOOSING ADOPTION

Decidiéndose por Adopción

¡Hola! Mi nombre es José

“A mí me gusta todo menos la mantequilla de maní. El baloncesto es mi deporte preferido.”

Por Milton L. Ortiz

José nació en diciembre de 1994, de descendencia latina, y es un jovencito paciente, fácil de llevar y callado. De acuerdo a su madre de crianza, José tiene el potencial para ser algún día un maestro maravilloso, porque es paciente con otros cuando les da instrucciones sobre cómo hacer algo.

José disfruta construir con Legos, jugar con muñequitos, buscar palabras y llenar crucigramas. A él también le gusta y tiene talento trabajando con computadoras. José prefiere el tiempo de juego a solas, que las actividades de grupo, aunque se puede llevar bien con otros. Aunque José puede probar a los nuevos adultos en su vida, fácilmente muestra afecto a las personas cercanas a él, y se lleva bien con otros en su hogar de crianza.

La escuela es algo que José disfruta y en lo que le va bien. El toma medicina, que le ayuda a enfrentar sus necesidades emocionales y de comportamiento que han resultado del trauma de su pasado. José es un jovencito amigable e inteligente que está listo para ser animado por una familia permanente. Legalmente libre para la adopción, José responderá bien con una familia de una madre sola o de una pareja que tenga o no otros hijos.

Usted puede ayudarle a José a encontrar un lugar llamado HOGAR, llamándonos a MARE al (617) 542-3678 ó a la línea gratis 1-800-882-1176 y preguntando por Milton Ortiz. También puede llamarnos si desea aprender más sobre la adopción en general o recibir una copia gratis del folleto “Decidiéndose por Adopción”. Usted también puede encontrar información en español acerca de otros niños que están en espera, en el Manual de MARE, el cual se encuentra en las bibliotecas públicas en todo el estado de Massachusetts, o visítenos en el Internet: www.mareinc.org.

Hi! My name is Jose

“I like anything but peanut butter. Basketball is my favorite sport.”

By Corina Hopkins

Born in December of 1994 of Latino decent, Jose is a patient, easy-going and quiet child. According to his foster mom, Jose has the potential to be a wonderful teacher someday because he is patient with others when giving them instructions on how to do something.

Jose enjoys building with Legos, playing with action figures, doing word searches and completing puzzles. He also enjoys and is quite talented at working with computers. Jose prefers time playing alone to group activities, though he can get along well with others. Though Jose can test new adults in his life, he easily gives affection to those close to him and gets along well in his foster home.

School is something that Jose enjoys and something at which he excels. He takes medication, which helps to address behavioral and emotional needs that have resulted from past trauma. Jose is a friendly and smart youngster who is ready to be cherished by a loving forever family. Legally free for adoption, Jose would do well with a single mom or two-parent family who do or do not have other children.

To learn more about Jose, or about adoption in general, call the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange at 617-54-ADOPT (542-3678) or 1-800-882-1176. IRS y los Estados Unen Fuerzas para Combatir el Lavado de Dinero

El Servicio de Impuestos Internos (IRS) anunció hoy un acuerdo con 33 estados y Puerto Rico para empezar a compartir la información del Acta de Secreto Bancario (BSA por sus siglas en inglés). Los acuerdos permitirán que el IRS y los estados participantes comparten información y complementen sus recursos para asegurarse de que las compañías de servicios de dinero (MSBs) estén cumpliendo con sus responsabilidades federales y estatales de registrarse con el gobierno y reportar las transacciones de dinero en efectivo y actividades sospechosas.

Las MSBs son instituciones financieras no bancarias que brindan ciertos servicios financieros a sus clientes. Tales negocios incluyen cambiadores de moneda extranjera, compañías de cambio de cheques, quienes emiten de cheques de viajero o tarjetas de valor añadido, y servicios de envío de dinero.

“Ya trabajamos en cooperación con más de 40 estados para combatir los paraísos tributarios abusivos”, dijo el Comisionado del IRS Mark W. Everson. “Este nuevo acuerdo ayudará a los gobiernos estatales y al federal a complementar recursos mientras atacan el lavado de dinero ilegal”.

El IRS y los estados participantes compartirán indicadores para instituir el cumplimiento y coordinarán sus esfuerzos para asegurarse de hacer todo el escudriñamiento del Acta de Secreto Bancario a las MSBs requerido por la ley, sin repetir esfuerzos. Los acuerdos también ayudarán al IRS y a los estados a presentar un frente unido para cerciorar cumplimiento por parte de las MSBs y sus representantes.

“Estos acuerdos han dado paso a una era de mayor cooperación. Combinando la experiencia del IRS con la supervisión e inspección hecha tradicionalmente a las MSBs por los departamentos de banca estatales producirá mejores resultados a un costo más bajo”, dijo la Superintendente del Departamento de Banca del Estado de Nueva York Diana L. Taylor. “Así como el IRS puede sacar provecho del perito de los reguladores de banca estatales, nuestros propios programas de inspección y cumplimiento se beneficiarán al tener acceso a su información crítica de inspección”.

“Los estados y el gobierno federal necesitan compartir información para rastrear las actividades cada vez más sofisticadas de las organizaciones criminales y otros”, dijo el Comisionado de Comercio de Minnesota Glenn Wilson. “Estableciendo un método para reportar y rastrear las transacciones de dinero en efectivo, iluminaremos un área de comercio que hasta ahora ha sido observada muy poco”.

Junto con Puerto Rico, los siguientes estados han firmado acuerdos de colaboración con el IRS: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nueva Jersey, Nueva York, Carolina del Norte, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin y Wyoming.

Colorado, Hawaii, Montana, New Hampshire, New Mexico y Montana no pueden unirse al IRS en estos acuerdos ya sea por prohibiciones de leyes estatales o porque no regulan la industria.

La información que el IRS y los estados pueden compartir bajo estos acuerdos está limitada a la información de inspección del Acta de Secreto Bancario, no información tributaria. El IRS tiene acuerdos de mucho tiempo por separado con los estados para compartir información tributaria.

Información adicional sobre las compañías de servicios de dinero y el Acta de Secreto Bancario está disponible en irs.gov o el sitio de Internet del Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) en www.fincen.gov.

En muchas ocasiones hay quienes piensan que al visitar una biblioteca solo podemos encontrar en ella libros antiguos, señoras de avanzada edad que pueden contar un sinnúmero de historias de época o de sus tiempos como decía mi abuela, que pueden resultar aburridas.

Un tema serio bajo la perspectiva de un comediante

Por Beatriz Pérez

Concluyó el mes de abril y con él se marcharon 30 días dedicados a crear conciencia contra el Asalto y la Agresión Sexual, dejando en muchos la interrogante de qué estamos haciendo a favor de este flagelo que separa familias y que en muchas ocasiones como es lógico pensarlo conlleva rencores y frustraciones.

Dentro del intenso y variado calendario de actividades diseñado por la YWCA del Greater Lawrence para el mes de abril hubo uno que en particular no solo nos llenó de emoción y transportó tristemente al pasado, nos referimos al realizado en la Escuela Técnica Vocacional de esta ciudad donde participó el actor y comediante Ben Antherton-Zeman, quien es el autor de un documental educacional titulado "Las Voces de los Hombres".

La comedia, y aunque parezca una paradoja, trata a cabalidad el tema del Asalto y la Agresión Sexual dentro del formato de comedia, sin embargo no se aleja del objetivo que organizaciones como la YWCA de Lawrence y otras entidades a nivel nacional, de despertar interés y reflexión en la juventud, que en la mayoría de los casos es blanco de este problema.

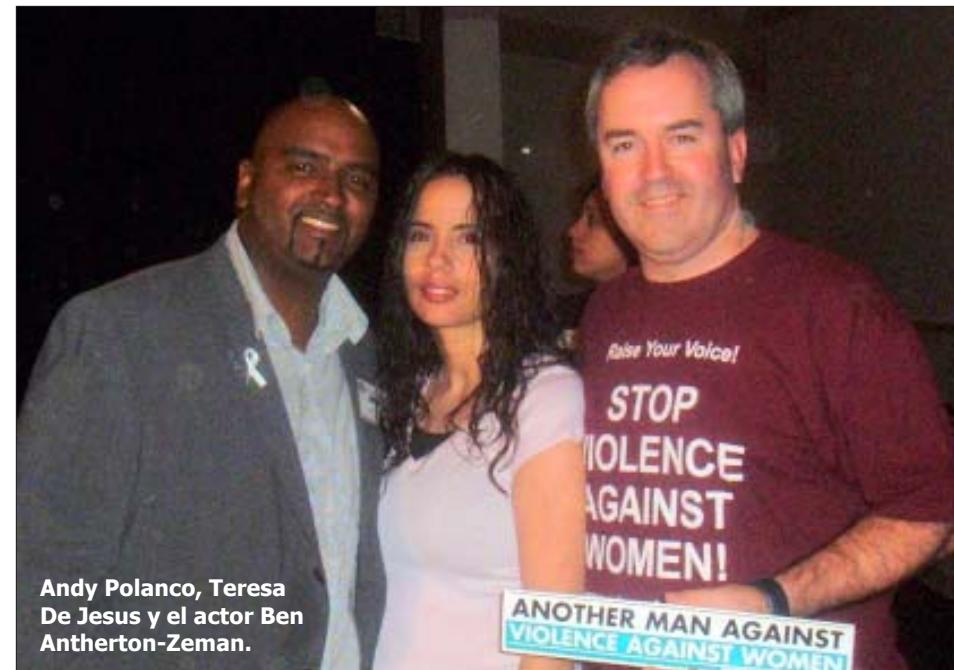

El documental expone de manera sensitiva aquellas cosas que están afectando a las mujeres, tales como agresión sexual, el estupro, la violación y la violencia doméstica.

Alrededor de 390 estudiantes de primer año de la GLTS, entre hembras y varones estuvieron presentes en el evento.

El objetivo principal de esta actividad fue poner en perspectiva no solo la importancia de crear conciencia sobre el tema del Abuso y la Agresión Sexual, sino dar a entender que no es solo responsabilidad de las mujeres levantarse sus voces en demanda de un trato digno y respetuoso, sino que los hombres deben comprometerse a alzarlas frente cualquier indicio de abuso y/o violencia contra la mujer.

La puesta en escena de este trabajo filmico fue reforzada durante cinco días a la semana durante dos meses de trabajo y esfuerzo de Teresa De Jesús y Andy Polanco que trabajan con adolescentes, educándolos sobre dichos temas, lo que aseguró el éxito de la actividad.

Gracias a ese trabajo los alumnos

aprendieron que existen recursos que pueden ayudarlos a ellos si son sobrevivientes de violencia y también en cómo ayudar en la prevención y educación tanto para las jóvenes como para los jóvenes y para que aprendan en qué consiste una relación sana.

Uno de los alumnos se puso de pie y dijo que deseaba que este video fuese presentado en cada grado, ya que algunas de las acciones abusivas que vio en el mismo, él las había ejecutado algunas veces, pero que no sabía que se consideraban como abusivas.

Ciertamente que en muchos de los estudiantes la comedia presentada por el actor provocó risa, pero sin embargo se observaban rostros de jóvenes preocupados y pensativos, en cuyos ojos en más de una ocasión asomó una lágrima.

Finalizando la presentación muchas jóvenes se acercaron a Polanco, a De Jesús y a Antherton-Zeman, solicitando ayuda para ellas como sobrevivientes, pero también buscando información de cómo ellas pueden ayudar a otras adolescentes que están o han estado involucradas en relaciones abusivas.

Un panel compuesto por el Oficial Cuddy del Lawrence Police Department, Karen Letourneau, Directora Clínica de la escuela basada en el Greater Lawrence Family Health Center, Teresa De Jesús Advocate/Educator para YWCA del Greater Lawrence Domestic Violence y de los Programas de Crisis de Violación y Andy Polanco Teen Educator de la YWCA de Lawrence y de los programas de Violencia Doméstica y Crisis de Violación, respondieron a las inquietudes de los estudiantes luego de terminada la función.

Los hombres y jóvenes presentes puestos de pie hicieron el juramento, junto al actor, que dice, "Nunca cometer, aprobar o permanecer en silencio ante cualquier acto de violencia a la mujer" y luego se colocaron la cinta blanca en su camisa.

En la organización del evento participaron Ms. Mary Beth Sullivan, directora de la GLTS, Tony Sarkis, Head of Physical Education and Freshman Health Academy, and Ilene Karnon Freshman Academy Leader.

Entre los asistentes Paul Muzhuthett del Departamento de Salud Pública, Raleigh Buchanan, Superintendente de las Escuelas Públicas de Haverhill; Carol Ireland de la Coalición contra la Violencia de Haverhill; y Craig Norberg The Men's Initiative de Jane Doe Inc.; Rebecca Hall, directora ejecutiva de la YWCA de esta ciudad; Mary O'Brien, Deputy Executive Director for Women's Services; y Vilma Lora, Directora de dichos programas.

Ciertamente que puede resultar difícil entender cómo podemos lograr concientiar a las personas por medio de una comedia, sin dejar de significar la magnitud de la seriedad de este problema social que afecta a la humanidad, lo que sin dudas fue logrado a cabalidad por el actor Ben Antherton-Zeman.

La Biblioteca Pública "Abrió sus Puertas" poniendo en perspectiva el trabajo que realizan

Por Beatriz Pérez

En muchas ocasiones hay quienes piensan que al visitar una biblioteca solo podemos encontrar en ella libros antiguos, señoras de avanzada edad que pueden contar un sinnúmero de historias de época o de sus tiempos como decía mi abuela, que pueden resultar aburridas.

Sin embargo toda esa impresión está alejada de la verdadera realidad que se vive en un lugar donde hay espacio para el aprendizaje, la sabiduría y el desarrollo cognoscitivo del ser humano.

Estas y otras cosas es lo que podemos encontrar en la biblioteca pública de esta ciudad, donde no solo los estudiantes pueden aprovecharse del cúmulo de conocimiento que guardan esas paredes y lo que muchos pudieron comprobar en el Open House que recientemente esta entidad realizó a fin de que el público asistente fuese testigo de los cambios que la misma ha sufrido.

Durante el transcurso de todo el evento en el rostro de la directora de la Biblioteca Pública, Maureen Nimmo se reflejaba la satisfacción que se siente cuando se ha completado una meta trazada.

Son muchas las cosas que han cambiado durante los últimos meses, no solo en lo referente a la parte física, con el cambio de las alfombras y el mejoramiento

Por Alberto Surís

Después de más de dos años de planeamiento, recaudación de fondos y construcción el Hospital General de Lawrence comenzó con una serie de celebraciones el evento que marca la apertura de la nueva y supermoderna sala de emergencia de 24,000 pies cuadrados.

Una recepción para Donantes/Médicos fue llevada a cabo la noche del martes, 25 de abril, donde doctores, enfermeras, personal y público en general alzó sus copas de champaña para celebrar la ocasión.

De acuerdo con el Presidente del Hospital General de Lawrence, Joseph MacManus, el hospital recaudó más de 8 millones para esta nueva unidad, con un donante que quiso mantenerse anónimo y que para retarlos, les ofreció $100,000 por cada millón que recaudaran. "Esto pasó muchas veces. Esto pasó 8 veces", dijo MacManus, el cual agradeció al donante por su contribución de ochocientos mil dólares.

After more than two years of planning, fund raising and construction, Lawrence General Hospital kicked off the opening events of their new, 24,000-square-foot State of the Art Emergency Center.

A Donor/Physician reception was held at the new facility on Tuesday evening, April 25, where doctors, nurses, staff and general public raised their champagne glasses to celebrate the occasion.

According to Lawrence General Hospital President Joseph MacManus, the hospital raised over 8 millions for this unit, with a donor who wanted to remain anonymous, placing a challenge that for each million raised, he would contribute $100,000. "This happened many times; this happened 8 times", said MacManus, who thanked the contributor for his $800,000 contribution.

Woman's Agenda Celebrates 8th Annual Women & Policy Symposium on Violence Against Women

Saturday, May 6, Woman's Agenda will celebrate its 8th Annual Women & Policy Symposium called Beating a Culture of Violence: "I'm a Survivor." It will take place at the Lawrence Senior Center, located at 155 Haverhill Street, from 8:30 am to 3:30 pm.

Woman's Agenda annually organizes a symposium to support and encourage the community activism of local women leaders in the Merrimack Valley.

Since its inception in 1999, Woman's Agenda plans and organizes a series of dialogues or symposiums, in which local women leaders can focus on themselves and the very important roles they play in every sphere of the community. Despite the fact that these symposiums are held only once a year, it has served to influence policy development in the public and private sectors.

This year the focus is on attacking violence against women through an intergenerational dialogue in which mature women will be engaged in a discussion with young adolescent and young adult females to develop strategies to prevent women from falling victims of violence and to ensure women already in abusive situations that there are avenues for escape.

This year the organizing committee includes not only Dr. Nilka Alvarez-Rodriguez, who is a Lawrence City Councilor-At-Large and Women Studies Instructor at Merrimack College, but also Patricia Sanchez-Reyes and Martina Cruz, Lawrence School Committee Members; June Black, Congressman Marty Meehan's Office; Maribel Serate and Noris Gonzalez, Garden of Options; Janice Burkholder, Senator Susan Tucker's Office; Vilma Lora, Greater Lawrence YWCA; Susan Santos, Women of Excellence Ministry; Grisel Silva, District B Lawrence City Councilor; Luz Rosado, Lawrence Senior Center; and Annia Lembert, New England UNITE HERE; as well as, community activists Haydee Cuadrado, Felicita Caminero, and Doris Anziani.

Another important objective of Woman's Agenda is to support and celebrate the tireless efforts of local women through the Maria Garcia Liriano Award and the Women of Action Awards.

The Maria Garcia Liriano Award is presented to one woman each year for outstanding achievements and this year it will go to domestic violence survivor, journalist, writer and poet Beatriz Perez.

The Women of Action Awards celebrates the extraordinary efforts of unsung heroines and this year these women are Sandy Almonte, Maria Monica Alvarez, Paula Callanan, Zoila Gomez Diaz, Rebecca A. Hall, Anna Ruth Sullivan, Carolyn Traficanti and Rev. Gladys Tucker.

The more permanent and essential aspect of Woman's Agenda is to heighten awareness of women's internal strength and to encourage their influence over policy decisions affecting their daily lives. Woman's Agenda does not only seek to impact policy in the public sector but also in the private sector where women are managers, workers, and consumers of organizations for profit and not.

DEMAND FOR CHANGE GROWS NATIONALLY FOR BETTER HIGH SCHOOLS

America is facing a crisis: Too many young people do not graduate from high school. Too many students graduate unprepared for college and work.

Notre Dame High School (NDHS) is addressing that crisis in the Merrimack Valley for low-income, primarily Latino students who aspire to attend college and attain professional success.

NDHS, a new, innovative, college-preparatory high school in Lawrence, features a "Cristo Rey"-model work/study program in which motivated, trained, and supervised students attend class four days a week and hold entry-level clerical jobs with local companies one day a week. These professional positions allow students to earn 70% of tuition costs and gain invaluable job and life experience as they prepare for college and careers.

Funding is primarily provided by Bill and Melinda Gates, founders and co-chairs of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation (www.gatesfoundation.org). The foundation has invested more than one billion dollars to support the creation of more than 1600 high-quality high schools, including Notre Dame High School.

Charter School received donation from TD Banknorth

By Alberto Suris

The TD Banknorth Charitable Foundation is pleased to announce its support of "Building for Their Futures," the capital campaign to renovate and expand the Lawrence Family Development Charter School, founded in 1995.

The project includes the acquisition and renovation of the former Saint Anne's High School and Convent located at 400-404 Haverhill Street and the construction of a new gymnasium on the property.

The $20,000 contribution by the TD Banknorth Charitable Foundation brings the charter school project closer to its September 2006 completion and allows for the facility to meet the increasing demand for early childhood education, after school programming, Citizenship Education and ESL classes.

Joanne Sullivan, Assistant Vice President, TD Banknorth Community Relations is impressed by the dedication of Charter School staff and parents who are participating in the fundraising campaign. "The community building component is essential to the long term success of the campaign and building project," stated Sullivan. According to Eduardo Lebron, parent and Chairperson of the Charter School Board, "parents have been able to grow along with their children and have acquired the skills to become contributors through their community."

Students and staff are excited about the progress at the former Saint Anne's High School site, as Patricia Karl, Executive Director points out. "Every day we are privileged to watch the renewal and transformation of these once beautiful buildings and look forward to their completion this fall when they will again welcome children and adults as viable places for learning for new generations. We are deeply grateful to TD Banknorth Charitable Foundation for supporting this important community project."

Peter Kamberelis, Director of Development, said, "the financial support our organization received from parents, staff, foundations, corporations and friends of the school helped us reach our fall and winter capital campaign goals. Over $930,000 has been contributed. This enabled

Central Catholic Community Grieves for Beloved Teacher and Coach Peter O'Sullivan

Mr. Peter O'Sullivan, a beloved mathematics teacher and cross-country and track coach at the school for 31 years, died suddenly on April 25th from an apparent heart attack while running in the vicinity of St. Mary Cemetery. He is survived by his wife Deborah; his three daughters Kendra O'Sullivan, Tatum O'Sullivan, and Rebecca (O'Sullivan) Merrill; son-in-law Christopher Merrill (a Central Catholic guidance counselor), and two grandchildren: Colby and Haley Merrill.

"Peter O'Sullivan was a demanding teacher," states Principal David M. DeFillippo, "who enabled students to reach a level they never thought they could reach by providing them with the confidence and ability to succeed. He really loved children – his own children, his grandchildren, and the thousands of students whose lives he touched as a teacher and coach. The kids knew he cared – he would never let them settle for anything but the best from themselves."

Referred to affectionately as "Coach O." by students and colleagues, Peter O'Sullivan led a distinguished career as an educator. After graduating from Central Catholic in 1967, he graduated from Boston College in 1971 with a degree in history. He returned to Central Catholic as a member of the faculty in 1975. In 1979 he earned his Master's in Math Teaching at the University of Lowell.

He taught all levels of mathematics at Central Catholic over the course of his 31-year career, serving as chair of the mathematics department for over 15 years. He moderated student council for six years and served as principal of the summer term for the past seven years. He also served as coach of the boys' cross-country team since 1979 and as coach of the boys indoor and outdoor track teams since 1983.

His achievements as a coach are exemplary. His teams compiled an astounding 80% winning percentage and earned 32 Merrimack Valley Conference Championships (seven cross country, 12 indoor track, 13 outdoor track), six relay championships (two indoor and four outdoor) and eight Class championships (two indoor and six outdoor.) In 1999, he was recognized as the Coach of the Year for Spring Track by the MA State Track Coaches' Association. He was a two-time Boston Globe Coach of the Year (1995 and 1999) and two-time Eagle Tribune Coach of the Year (2002 and 2003).

"Peter had the ability to turn hundreds of young men into runners, runners of all abilities, and many into lifelong runners," states Central Catholic teacher and coach Robert Benedetto, a former student of Peter O'Sullivan. "Through running, he taught them about life – there is no substitute for hard work, persistence and patience will lead to success, everyone is able to measure individual progress, and there are benefits of doing things of value with great rewards. Peter has given hundreds of boys, who became men, this great gift."

School Response

"The Central Catholic community has been deeply affected by this great loss," states President Br. Rene D. Roy, FMS. "Our hearts are with the O'Sullivan family during this trying time as we all struggle to come to terms with this tragedy."

The school's crisis management team, which consists of administrators, counselors, campus ministers, faculty, and the school nurse, met early in the morning and activated the support plan for such an event in order to assist students and teachers. Teachers and staff were informed last night through a phone tree and asked to attend a 7:00am planning meeting this morning.

Students were informed of Mr. O'Sullivan's death at the beginning of the school day and led in prayer by campus minister Elizabeth Desjardins. To provide additional assistance for teachers and students, grief counselors from the Trauma Intervention Program of Merrimack Valley were called to the school. A special team has been meeting with each of Mr. O'Sullivan's classes throughout the day, and several locations have been set aside for support and counseling for students and teachers. Faculty will meet with the crisis management team at the end of the school day to debrief and assess the needs of faculty and students over the next few days.

Students have been given the opportunity to contribute to a journal, located in the school's Carney Family Chapel, which will be presented to the O'Sullivan family. A letter from Principal David M. DeFillippo is being sent home to parents updating them on Mr. O'Sullivan's death, the school's response, and steps families can take to assist their students in dealing with this tragedy.

Grant will fund scholarships for low-income students in Lawrence, Mass.

Sovereign Bank today announced its continued commitment to young people in the Merrimack Valley with a grant of $20,000 to Esperanza Academy, School of Hope in Lawrence, Mass. The grant, which will fund scholarships at the private middle school for girls, is part of Sovereign's "Spirit of Your Neighborhood Campaign."

Esperanza, which will open its doors to fifth through eighth-grade girls in September, will offer tuition-free education to low-income families living in Lawrence.

"Opportunities, educational and otherwise, are needed here," said Len Wilson, Sovereign's regional president for the Merrimack Valley. "Sovereign is proud to support the vision expressed by this institution's very name: Esperanza Academy, School of Hope. A safe, quality education at a very important time in the development of these children provides a foundation of hope."

Esperanza Academy is an Episcopal Nativity school that will provide its students with an enriched educational environment, long school days and a long school year, 10-to-1 student-teacher ratios, performing arts and athletics in the after-school hours, mentoring and tutoring in the evening hours, while also involving the parents and caregivers as volunteers in the school. Esperanza's goal is to provide high-quality education to those in most need.

"The need for facilities like this is compelling and we would be unable to move forward without support from companies like Sovereign Bank that value the communities they are part of," said Laurie Bottiger, Esperanza Academy's Head of School. "Thanks to Sovereign, and all our benefactors, we will be able to address this need beginning in September."

The Sovereign Bank Foundation, through its "Spirit of Your Neighborhood Campaign," supports non-profit organizations with charitable grants with the mission of making a difference in youth and educational programs as well as community and economic development programs. Last year more than 800 community organizations received over $3.6 million through the Sovereign Bank Foundation.

Lantigua wins increased funding for Lawrence schools, non-profits, voter aid in Fiscal 2007 House Budget

The fiscal 2007 state budget approved by the House of Representatives includes significant funding increases to Lawrence schools and non-profit organizations, and subsidizes a program designed to provide assistance to voters at the city's polling places.

State Representative William Lantigua (D-Lawrence) noted that Lawrence Public Schools – funded at more than $123 million – received one of the largest increases in Massachusetts, nearly $6 million over last year's total.

"In a year when communities across the state have struggled to get adequate funding, I'm gratified that leadership granted so many of my requests for Lawrence," Lantigua said.

Lantigua said that the distribution of local aid reflects his commitment to education and social services. In addition to spending for public schools, the budget includes $19.5 million in funding to Greater Lawrence Technical School. Lawrence will also receive a share of $300,000 earmarked to establish "Campaign for Proficiency," a statewide program to help improve MCAS test scores necessary for high school graduation.

Our House for Design and Technology was awarded $1 million for its educational and financial literacy programs.

"This funding is critical to our mission of meeting the economic and educational needs of the people of Lawrence," said Our House Program Director Tamar Kotelchuck. "We're extremely grateful for Rep. Lantigua's continued support. We never could have reached this goal without him."

The New England Puerto Rican Association, which organizes local cultural festivals and voter registration drives, was given $125,000, more than twice the amount it received last year. Casa Dominicana, a community and cultural education program, also saw its funding increase from $60,000 to $125,000. Lawrence Learning Center and Community Services, which offers after-school, ESL, and GED classes, was awarded $100,000, up from $60,000 in fiscal 2006.

Arlington Community Trabajando, a community development corporation focused on creating a safer, cleaner environment, received $60,000. The YWCA of Greater Lawrence and Family Service, Inc. were awarded $50,000 each.

Food for the World Pantry received $100,000, nearly double last year's amount. Neighbors in Need, another advocacy group providing food to the city's disadvantaged residents, was given $53,000.

Lantigua said he was particularly pleased by House approval of a one-time expenditure of $43,700 to purchase 24 personal computers, one for each of Lawrence's polling stations. Volunteers will use information stored on the machines to assist voters with questions about their eligibility and to help them find the appropriate place to cast their ballots.

Lantigua said he would continue to pursue local funding options as debate moves to the Senate next week, and when the legislature considers additional budget items in the summer and fall.

"Of course, I'm disappointed that some organizations were left out," he said. "They're equally worthy of support, and I'll continue to fight for them in the Senate and the supplemental budget."

The message of the latino genie in the bottle: One man, one woman, at a time

By Paul V. Montesino, PhD
mailto:boxopen@aol.com

The history of human rights in the United States is intimately connected with the civil rights of its minorities. No other modern country, in our opinion, shows such a display of courage in becoming aware and sensitive to those fundamental rights and identifying the demands of those citizens directly affected. And part of its tradition is realizing how that identification further grows to become a noble cause and even a fight that goes beyond its origin until those burdens are lifted. It takes time, of course, but the outcome is inevitable.

Each crusade for rights starts slowly, perhaps at the individual level, isolated, ignored or intentionally crushed by the apathetic majority that does not want to compromise its grip on power. Like a genie out of a bottle of consciousness the first beneficiaries are usually disperse and trying to survive from the new insecurity and anger of those who want to squash them to maintain the status quo. Then, after time, those individual crusaders become more aware of each other and their own importance and power gather momentum and join together in a battle that is recognized as, quoting Werner Erhard's thoughts about the end of starvation in The Hunger Project, "an idea whose time has come." The result is a new United States for the world to see.

After the thirteen colonies became free from the British yoke the first true test came when the United States Congress approved the Thirteenth Amendment to the constitution: The abolition of slavery. Of course, the day after this amendment passed the lives of slaves in the United States did not suddenly become wonderful. Freed slaves had to gain their own independence and livelihood one person at a time, one day at a time, in one school, one job and one community at a time.

Those whose economic lives were or felt threatened by the new state of things did not roll down to die; they and generations to come used all kinds of aggressive measures to retain their privileges, whether ill-gained or not: "In response to the law, several states enacted "black codes" which were intended to limit the civil rights of the newly freed slaves. In 1868 the 14th Amendment to the Constitution was passed to counter those "black codes" and ensure that no state "shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of the citizens of the United States... [Or] deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law... [Or] deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." (Source: www.law.cornell.edu)

The next big cause was the acceptance of women in the voting booths of the land. Spearheaded by many women of the caliber of Susan B. Anthony, women coalesced demanding the right to choose our leaders, including themselves, and this was the beginning of a cause that would lead to the so-called "women's liberation" movement and eventually included abortion rights and protection against sexual harassment in the workplace amongst others.

"The drive for woman suffrage movement gained strength after the passage of the 15th Amendment to the Constitution, which gave the vote to black men but not to any women. The movement lasted at least 70 years, from the first formal women's convention in 1848 in Seneca Falls, New York, to the passage of the 19th amendment of the U.S. Constitution in 1920. Most people who had opposed woman suffrage believed that women were less intelligent and less able to make political decisions than men. They argued that men could represent their wives better than the wives could represent themselves. Some people feared that women's participation in politics would lead to the end of family life." (Source: Wikipedia.) Does that sound familiar? Of course, "family life" was a term that would go through many phases of social definition.

But bigger civil rights battles were still on the horizon. "In 1954, the Supreme Court took a momentous step: In Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka the court set aside a Kansas statute permitting cities of more than 15,000 to maintain separate schools for blacks and whites and ruled instead that all segregation in public schools is "inherently unequal" and that all blacks barred from attending public schools with white pupils are denied equal protection of the law as guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment against the so-called black codes."

"At the time of the 1954 decision, laws in 17 southern and border states (Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, and Missouri) and the District of Columbia required that elementary schools be segregated."

But that was not all. The most prominent civil rights legislation since reconstruction was the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Decisions of the Supreme Court, at the time limited Congressional enforcement of the 14th Amendment to state action. Therefore, Congress, using its power to regulate interstate commerce, enacted the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which stated that "Discrimination based on race, color, religion, or national origin is prohibited." The Civil Rights Act of 1964 and subsequent legislation also declared a strong legislative policy against discrimination in public schools and colleges thus aiding desegregation. (www.law.cornell.edu.)

I was in Washington D.C. in July of 1964 and witnessed first hand the level of exhilaration by a multitude of black men and women who trekked to the Washington monument to celebrate their newly received civil rights legislation package. But again, it would take many more years, we are not even sure if it is still taking those years, before the complete elimination of prejudice and discrimination on this land takes hold.

"Our mistreatment was just not right, and I was tired of it," wrote Rosa Parks in her Quiet Strength, (Zondervan Publishing House, 1994) book. "I kept thinking about my mother and my grandparents, and how strong they were. I knew there was a possibility of being mistreated, but an opportunity was being given to me to do what I had asked of others." Ms. Parks' actions sparked a new awareness of individual and group power of a minority that refused to be ignored, discounted or abused. The rest is history.

And there would be more. "I know that the excitement that began in the early-morning hours of June 28, 1969 outside a Greenwich Village gay bar called the Stonewall Inn really isn't the historical beginning of the movement for LGBT rights. But the civil disturbances that came to be called the "Stonewall Riots" appeal to me symbolically the way the Battle of Bunker Hill or Paul Revere's late night ride symbolize the beginnings of the American Revolution. It makes one proud to identify with a legacy which says "Enough is enough," or, as Popeye would put it, "That's all I can stands 'cuz I can't stands no more." (Robert N. Minor, Professor of Religious Studies, University of Kansas and founder of The Fairness Project.)

The gay movement helped by the U.S. Supreme Court passing on the unconstitutionality of anti-sodomy laws in the books of several states eventually culminated in the gay's marriage laws of Massachusetts and is one of the recent genies out of the bottle in the newly minted United States of America. Gay marriage in our Massachusetts is one of those issues that does not show in the radar of our lives: no one gives it a second thought any more unless, of course, you happen to be gay and want to marry the most important person in your life.

With the background of these long and intensely fought battles for individual rights in the history of our nation we are witnessing now a new genie coming out of a recently uncorked bottle: Latino power. The strength of the demonstrations of hundreds of thousands of Latinos demanding an end to threats of jailing or deportations against undocumented immigrants has the potential to develop into the greatest display of political power in 21st Century USA.

Mr. B's Sports Memories

Joe Abdinoor aka JoJo the ball boy

By Frank Benjamin

The following story is a rewrite of an article of a few years ago that I wrote for Bill Callagy's newspaper at his request. Most of the athletes of that era will remember JoJo and maybe this article will bring a smile or even a tear to you.

To many people of the Greater Lawrence area the name JoJo or "JoJo the ball boy" brings to mind the quiet little man who is in attendance at every Lawrence High School athletic event both home and away. He is mostly in the background but all of the players of each sport can remember him and most will have a little anecdote about him.

A couple of weeks ago Joe was severely injured as a result of being struck by a car in a hit and run accident. His injuries included a broken hip, and knee, lacerations off the scalp and some internal bleeding. His condition warranted a stay at the Lawrence General Hospitals intensive care unit.

Our fast paced society seems to neglect acknowledging nice things or people until it is destroyed or torn down or in the case of a person after they pass on. Well JoJo is not destroyed or in great danger of leaving this world, he has although in a lot of pain just been benched for a while.

Most of the people in the sports area know of the physical challenges he has faced throughout his life, but for the benefit of those who don't, let me bring you up to snuff. He was and still is deaf and cannot speak. I know in most places it's "deaf and dumb." Everyone of his multitude of friends will avow to his lack of hearing but none of us will ever even think of him being dumb.

The editor of this paper has asked me, as a close friend of JoJo's, to write something about him and not being a talented writer or the most articulate man around please accept these sincere jottings and musings of an ex softball manager who had more than a passing acquaintance with Joe.

I really don't remember when we first met and it seems like I'd known him forever. I remember seeing him at all the local sporting events and it was his brother Louie and sister-in-law Josephine who he lived with and were his caretakers - a fact I found out later when we became really close. Louie was the owner of the Albrite Cleaning and Rug Company that still exists on Route 114 in South Lawrence and Joe could often be seen riding shotgun in one of the company trucks as they made their rounds in the City.

Maybe I met him at a Lawrence and Lowell game in what year? I'm really bad on dates but I'll bet he was at the game that Gerry Callagy of the blue and white and Titus Plomeritus squared off in what could've been the greatest game of this long time series. I'm sure he had been to many games before that classic epic. He, to my knowledge, was part of Mark Devlin and Jimmy Jordan's teams as well as Eddie Doherty and Ed Buckley, Fred Dennen, Vin Keough and John Kelleher's teams in football. He became the right hand man of baseball and basketball coaches such as Billy Regan, Basil Bova, Eddie Webb, Fred Moriarty, Bill Ruffen, Bobby Lefebre and Norm Liversidge each of these coaches gave him a free reign as mostly all of them recognized his love for the school, the sport but mostly the players.

He was allowed to ride on the team buses traveling to visiting sites but it was not a "freebie" as he always earned his way. Most of those coaches would certainly attest to that fact. He specialized in the menial things and his dedication to his duties was something to behold and his job was never left unattended. His duties included the towels and water cups for the teams and he was to round up all the balls as the event was to start and woe be any of the athletes who tried to disrupt his system or take a towel or hang onto a ball when his time to round them up when he was told to. He had no star system and if you didn't heed his gestures some very wild animated confrontation took place.

A story was brought up the other day about a now deposed coach who tried to have him barred from the bus (I told you before most coaches loved having him around and this was the only one who didn't.) It seemed he thought our man was some kind of an enemy spy or something and was in some way connected to the losing ways of the school's football team. The problem was rectified and Joe once again became a passenger on the team bus. Many of the team's followers felt that Joe in his own silent way could've produced more wins than this coach who considered him a Jonah.

Our relationship peaked when the Social League took over at the Hayden Schofield Playstead on Lawrence Street when the highly successful City League folded. We were the younger league and I'm not sure if we inherited him or he us, I'll never be sure. Our league quickly became aware of his presence right from the start and what a luxury it was. Every night the bases were tied down on the field and at the game's end returned to the scorer's booth. He took the collection every night and made sure the lights were put on and later off also every night. He also made sure nobody could walk in or out of the booth at any time and was not to be dissuaded ever to my knowledge.

These were his chores and any employer should have the luck of having such a diligent and faithful employee to do his job as this great little guy. We, the new league, never knew that he was a paid employee of the league but were quickly served notice of this fact and what his pay rate was to be. When talking to some of the old timers who frequented the games last week they told me that he got to keep all the pennies that were put in the collection box. His duties at that time included climbing a ladder to put the score on the scoreboard by hanging numbers on a hook - this before the electric scoreboard was put in. He never made a mistake I'm told and the score was always right on this board.

Eventually he became big business and as mentioned before he was not "dumb" and he decided he was worth more money and was seeking a raise. No one can tell us how he won his battle for higher wages without conversing with the league powers-to-be but he did and maybe a job action or maybe even a strike was averted.

He has since started a corporation in which he hired two kids to run the new electric scoreboard from the booth at the corner which has been named McAuliffe Corner and has a beautiful plaque on the wall in honor of the long time league president. Having these two young laborers allowed our man to keep an eye on things outside the booth and also to mix with the players, managers and many friends he had accrued in his many years involved in sports. Many of his former high school players now were playing softball in this league. I don't know of anyone who can tell us what he paid his help and, of course, he wasn't saying.

When it was starting to get dark at the games he would ignore this and all managers pleas to put on the lights, he would shake his head to signal "no way" and would only respond to the request of the home plate umpire. Once given the umps signal he would scurry to left field where the main switch was stationed and use his keys (which by the way, only he had a set) us managers were not allowed any keys. He would open the huge locked doors remove a safety panel of plywood that Houdini would have trouble moving and "voila" lights.

Most afternoons he would help public park workers and friends Joe O'Connell and Frank Misserville pick up the papers and junk left at the park. He also would find time to sneak across Lawrence Street to Tom's Variety Store for some snacks; it seemed he was always eating. I found that he could read and that's how he was aware of all the sporting events that went on in the area. He would go to Gene McAuliffe's funeral home also across the street and read Gene's paper and it became his hangout away from home.

The more I got to know him, the more I became aware of his ability to communicate with others and Joe, Missy, Gene and me along with his family became almost forgetful of his disabilities. I think Gene feels he is president of Joe's league. If he wanted to tell you something he would charade it out or show you a letter on a jacket or even a candy bar wrapper to make you understand. I've heard him say Joe for O'Connell and Missy for Frank and even Benji for this greenhorn writer.

He has laughed and ridiculed me when and umpire would throw me out of a game and it was a big joke to him, he'd rub his fingers as our parents used to do when we were naughty. He has also hugged me and shook my hand after my team won a big game. We became traveling mates and I would take him home many nights and sometimes we would have a Dairy Queen or even stop off at Chris' Ace of Clubs further up Lawrence Street where a lot of the players would go to throw back a few cold ones.

He loved being with the boys and they loved seeing him buying him sodas chip and hotdogs for as long as we stayed. It was the same with the girls' team he was like a rock star. His sister-in-law and brother said it was OK for him to go with me to the club but asked if I would limit his eating all the junk food. When some nights I didn't take him he would be very unhappy, snapping his fingers and pointing towards the club and when I refused he would shake his head in disappointment.

In the off season if I would meet him downtown say at McDonald's. I'd sit with him and have coffee and when I had to leave he would pat me on the back after smiling when I appeared through the door his nod of acceptance that he has acknowledged me as his friend could really make my day.

When driving with him and it was just the two of us he would sneak his hand up and tap me on the back of my head and quickly look out the window as if someone else did it and he would be really giggling.

I went to the hospital last week to see my pal and he was under the covers and wearing an oxygen mask as he slept. I felt so helpless as I watched him and suddenly he woke up. His eyes showed me he recognized me. He was fumbling his hands under the covers and thinking he was in pain I grabbed his hand and he squeezed mine and I know he said "my friend". It was pretty misty there for a while.

I mentioned before that he can read and when he reads this article he should know how much the players, fans, officers, and managers of his league miss him - make that, tremendously.

My reasons are very selfish, first of all, I have forgotten the bases twice this week; secondly, your kid employees are mad at me because I didn't pay them; and the third thing is that plywood panel that you so deftly move in and out of the electrical box has left my knuckles a bloody mess. So please get well soon so you can show all us hot shot managers how to care for your field and get us off the hook again.

Recreation Department kicks off riverside park beautification project

Haverhill Mayor James Fiorentini visited Riverside Park this morning to inspect the Recreation Department's cleanup and maintenance project. The Recreation Department is replacing and repainting benches, bleachers, and picnic tables, and removing graffiti. Local Boy scouts and Eagle scouts will be assisting in the project by repainting the snack shack and removing graffiti on other buildings. A fence company will be assessing replacement of fence parts.

"Riverside Park is a great family destination, and it needs a little sprucing up. We want it to be safe and clean for this season." Stated Mayor Fiorentini.

Residents Speak – City Listens - Streets to be Repaved

Last month, Mayor James J. Fiorentini asked residents to send in their requests on which streets needed to be repaved. It was the first time the City formally made such a request to residents.

Now the City has announced its repaving list for the year and many of the residents who requested that streets be repaved have found their requests were listened to and the city will repave their streets.

For example, a number of residents complained about Riverside Avenue, which runs along the river in Riverside. That street will be added to the repaving list. Other residents complained about North Main Street in the area by Legion Farm. Residents who requested the repaving of Vale Street, Hazel Street, Overlook Avenue, and Ashworth Terrace found their requests were listened to and their streets will be repaved.

The city, as part of its regular inspection, also noted a number of other streets to be repaved. Streets to be repaved are Vale Street, Bond Street, Hazel Street, Portions of Golden Hill Avenue, Chick Avenue, Silver Street, Davis Street, portions of Riverside Avenue, Freeman Street Ext., and downtown at Granite Street and Wingate Street and other streets to be determined.

The money is from the State and is known as "Chapter 90 Money". Those funds can be used to repair streets or, with special permission from the State, to purchase equipment. Last year the City paved approximately fifteen miles of street and also purchased the new sidewalk street sweeper with the State money.

Mayor Fiorentini said, "Keeping our streets cleaned and well repaired is an important service to our people and it is important to our image as a city. We were happy this year to receive a number of requests from residents. While not all requests could be granted we are grateful to the residents for bringing a number of streets to our attention."

Our Newest Weapon in the War on Grime

Clean streets has been a priority for this administration since I took office. Clean streets is an essential economic development tool, and keeping a city clean is an important service that you pay for. Clean streets always has to be a partnership between the city and its citizens—we can not do it alone. We need people to keep their own streets and sidewalks clean and help us by picking up an item or two in their neighborhoods. But city government also has a crucial role to play. Two years ago, we purchased our first new street sweeper in many years, using water department money to do so.

Last year, when I was in Washington for Congressman Meehan's annual constituent day, I noticed that Washington, DC had smaller, more versatile machines to handle sidewalks and to vacuum the debris left in the gutters. These smaller machines work in conjunction with the larger more traditional street sweepers that clean the streets.

This year, we were able to persuade the State to allow us to use some of the State road money (called Chapter 90 money) to purchase one of those new, smaller machines—they are combination street sweeper and street vacuum. This year, at the Earth day cleanup, we were able to showcase our new sidewalk vacuum, trade named "The Green Machine" for the first time.

Up until now, we have been frustrated in keeping our downtown parking garage clean. Traditional street sweepers were too big to fit into it. Volunteers and prisoners do a great job, but this garage needs regular scheduled maintenance. We do not have the manpower to sweep it by hand. This new sweeper/vacuum will help there and in parks throughout the city. The new sweeper has an attached vacuum that allows the operator to pick up litter that is too big to sweep.

We also intend to use the green machine to help us clean parks, sidewalks, and some of the other areas of town that our more traditional, larger equipment can not handle. We are still shorthanded, so this one machine is not going to perform miracles, but we hope it helps in the effort to keep your neighborhoods clean on a tight budget.

Greater Lawrence Students Headed to National Business Competition

Three Greater Lawrence Technical School Marketing students are headed to the Lone Star state at the end of this month for a national competition, thanks to a knack for business honed in the school's classrooms and computer labs.

The three sophomores — Halysson Cunha, Michael Scott, and Joshua Medina — are participants in the DECA Virtual Business Challenge. The challenge is an Internet-based competition that allows students to test their skills at managing a simulated retail convenience store or sports franchise.

Initially, the GLTS trio worked on the project at school, but such was their passion, they downloaded the simulation software on their home computers and began working with it outside of school as well.

Their reward came when they learned they had finished at the top of the heap in Massachusetts, and second in the North Atlantic region. That qualified them for the competition at DECA's International Career Development conference, which will be held in Dallas, Texas from April 29 to May 2.

"This is a very significant accomplishment," GLTS Marketing instructor Frank Torres said. "They were competing against students from 225 schools in 16 states. I'm very proud of them."

"The Virtual Business Challenge was implemented for the first time last year," he said. "It gives students a good idea of how stores operate. They learn that marketing is basically around us all of the time, and how they can implement the things they've learned here in school."

The trio created a virtual retail establishment they named "Waves of Cunha." They then developed a marketing strategy based on functions such as pricing, promotion, and merchandising; operated the business and optimized its profitability; and managed it through competitive threats, pressures, and other obstacles.

"The main goal is to attain as high a profit as you can in a (virtual) one-year period," Halysson said.

During the course of the competition, the three students had to make staffing decisions, decide whether to take out business loans, and determine what advertising to use.

At the national conference, the GLTS team will compete in a round robin event against teams from across the country.

"We'll have 15 minutes to try to make as much store cash as we can in head-to-head competition," Michael said.

"The advertising done by the team you're facing can affect your forecasts," he said. "They can try to steal customers away from you by offering discounts. We'll have to set our staffing levels, and determine what promotions work best with our local demographic. For instance, we'll have to determine whether to use radio stations for advertising, or direct mail."

"It should be a lot of fun," Joshua added. DECA is an international student organization made up of young people interested in marketing, management, and entrepreneurship. Its purposes are to develop a respect for education, which contributes to occupational competence, and to promote understanding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free, competitive enterprise system.

Greater Lawrence SkillsUSA Students Head to State Conference

Twenty-two Greater Lawrence Technical School students are headed to this week's Massachusetts SkillsUSA State Leadership and Skills Conference, being held in Marlboro April 27-29.

Among them are five students who qualified to compete at the conference based on their performance at the SkillsUSA North District Conference on March 14. Additional students qualified through in-house competitions.

Competitors include the Community Service team of Kirssi Gonzalez, Suhaiti Villa, and Misael Abreu, all of Lawrence, who will give a presentation entitled "'Spring into Service' — Skilled Hands and Deeds Meeting Needs. Purpose: Unite our student body's skills and talents to benefit the homeless in our community."

The three Allied Health juniors, along with Greater Lawrence students from all 17-career areas in the school, volunteered to contribute on-site services to Lazarus House in Lawrence. They have repaired, sanded, and painted two porches; engaged in cleaning and landscaping, including making picnic tables and planters; made and distributed Easter baskets and participated in an Easter celebration for the children in the facility's pre-school center; run a canned food drive; and served meals.

"Spring into Service" was planned throughout the school year, and culminated in a week of dedicated service to Lazarus House.

Culinary Arts freshmen Megan Moynihan of Andover and Ashley Calderon of Lawrence will compete in the Action Skills and Job Skill demonstrations, respectively, and Biotechnology freshman Brittany Tyler of Methuen will compete in the Job Interview event. In addition, Marketing students Michael Calthorpe, Elizabeth Allen, Andrea Harper, and Jessica Garcia, all of Lawrence, are entered in the Entrepreneurship competition.

Fashion juniors Ashley Artis, Diana Santiago, and Josselind Banford, all of Lawrence, will perform a presentation on "Christmas Stockings for the 101st Airborne Division" in the Tech Prep competition. Cosmetology juniors Kendra Fantauzzi of Lawrence, Jeanette Olavarria of Lawrence, and Taylor Mercier of Methuen will also compete in Tech Prep with a presentation entitled "Look Good...Feel Better — A Wig Program For Cancer Patients."

The five students who qualified by winning medals at the District competition include senior John Provencal of Lawrence, who made school history by becoming the first GLTS student to earn a gold medal in cabinetmaking. The other medal winners were juniors Stephen Lebel of Methuen (silver, Electronics Applications), Astrid Parra of Lawrence (bronze, First Aid/CPR), Kristin Maglio of Lawrence (bronze, Nurse Assisting), and Rafael Sanquintin of Lawrence (bronze, Office Computer Applications).

Allied Health junior Fatima Tineo of Lawrence will serve as a voting delegate, representing GLTS in the selection of state officers, including participating in election campaigns and conducting Massachusetts SkillsUSA business.

At the state conference, students from career and technical education programs throughout the Commonwealth participate in hands-on competition in more than 60 categories. The winners will be announced at Olympic-style ceremonies on Saturday, April 29 at 10:30 a.m. at the Best Western Royal Plaza in Marlboro.

The winners at the state conference will represent Massachusetts at the 42nd Annual SkillsUSA National Leadership and Skills Conference in Kansas City, Missouri June 18-24. More than 12,000 people nationwide, including competitors, advisors and 1,000 or more industry sponsors, participate in the national event.

Greater Lawrence has advanced to the nationals four times in the Community Service event. Last year's team, consisting of Gloriluz Rosario, Rafael Sanquintin, and Kirssi Gonzalez, brought home gold medals and had the highest score in the nation among the 48 competing teams.

SkillsUSA provides opportunities for students in leadership, teamwork, citizenship and character development. Among other things, it emphasizes high ethical standards and superior work skills, and promotes understanding of the free-enterprise system and involvement in community service.

'A day without a Mexican' enjoys revival amid immigration debate

In light of what might happen on May 1st, we want to share some information on the film that inspired the nationwide boycott "A Day without Immigrants"

As activists urge work and school boycotts May 1 in what's being called "A Day Without Immigrants," a film with a similar title and the same message — needs immigrants—is enjoying a revival.

The 2004 independent film "A Day Without a Mexican" made less than $5 million in theaters, but rentals are up and a new ad campaign is in the works. Some protesters are even sporting T-shirts with the film's logo, a silhouette of a man in a sombrero carrying a duffel bag.

"There's been a lot of talk about the film — it has served as an organizing tool, a kind of reference," said Yareli Arizmendi, who co-wrote the script and whose husband, Sergio Arau, directed the film.

Arizmendi first noticed renewed interest in the film when she went to protests in downtown Los Angeles in March. Not only were people wearing the film's T-shirt, others carried banners with the logo and some chanted variations on a key film line: "How do you make the invisible visible?"

In the last month, rentals of the movie have increased 17 percent compared to the month before, said Leigh Savidge, CEO of Xenon Pictures, the distributor.

"It was the right film pegged to the zeitgeist right now," he said, adding that Xenon is planning new billboard ads and radio spots, and will give away T-shirts at upcoming rallies.

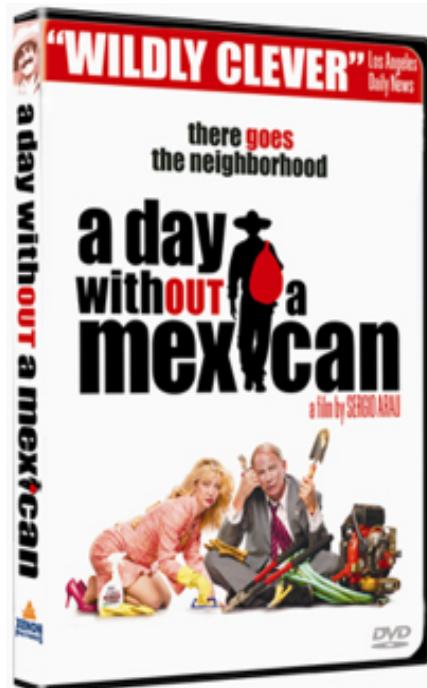

An HBO film titled "Walkout" also was prophetic. The feature dramatizes when thousands of Latino students in Los Angeles boycotted classes over poor quality schools. It debuted March 18, a week before hundreds of thousands, including many students, marched in Los Angeles.

"A Day Without a Mexican" is a mockumentary showing what happens when mysterious fog surrounds California and all the Latinos — one-third of all residents — disappear. Arizmendi plays a television news reporter who is the only surviving Latino.

The comedy plays on stereotypes of California's immigrants, who are mostly Mexican, as farm laborers and gardeners. Without them, carts of oranges go unsold beside freeway onramps and leaf-blowers spin in circles with no one to work them. The governor disappears, garbage goes uncollected and public safety is endangered as police departments are decimated.

The filmmakers' point: The state needs immigrants as much as the immigrants need the state.

Many immigration activists are now saying just that as they plan for May 1. Though there is disagreement over the strategy, many are urging immigrants to boycott work, school and shopping that day to show how important they are to the nation.

"One of the arguments is that immigrants take away from the economy. Then, if they're not here — if they don't work or buy anything — essentially the economy will go up, right?" said Oscar Byanko Sanchez-Quinto, a spokesman for the March 25 Coalition in Los Angeles. "This will be a good marker. Let's show our economic power."

"I think the film made perfect sense from that point of view," he said.

...the film won festival awards in and grossed $4.6 million in theaters — more than twice what it cost to make. In its first six weeks available for DVD rental, it brought in $13 million, Arizmendi said. Netflix, which rents films online, said demand for the movie spiked dramatically starting late March.

Activists who want to use the film to raise money are free to do so, Arizmendi said, but the distributor now controls any commercial screenings.

"As artists, the pleasure is to really have your work resonate and mean something," she said. "Art takes its inspiration from reality."

Immigrants and allies to rally in Manchester

New Hampshire immigrants and their allies will hold a rally from 4 to 6 PM at City Hall Plaza in Manchester on Monday, May 1, to call for immigration reforms which provide legal protection for millions of immigrants now in the United States without legal documents.

"We reject immigration proposals that turn us into criminals," said Lily Mesa, of the NH Immigrants Rights Task Force. "We want decent jobs with good working conditions for everyone who wants to work," she added.

The rally coincides with U.S. Senate consideration of immigration reform proposals, and with a nationwide day of action.

"Proposals to arrest and deport millions of deserving immigrants threaten core American values that we all cherish," commented Nabil Migalli of the Arab American Forum. "Any immigration reform bill must provide a way for undocumented residents to become citizens and promote family reunification," he added.

Leticia Ortiz, Manchester organizer for NH Citizens Alliance said "We want to remind all elected officials that immigrants vote."

The "Liberty and Justice for All" rally, from 4 to 6 PM, is co-sponsored by a growing list of groups, including NH Immigrants Rights Task Force, Latin American Center, Arab American Forum, NH AFL-CIO, American Friends Service Committee-NH, NH Citizens Alliance, NH Coalition for Occupational Safety and Health, NH Sisters of Mercy Region 2, Granite State Organizing Project, Mexican Association of NH, Vote Now NH Hispanics, and Visión Hispana NH.

Margarita Fernandez-Letkowsky, President of the Mexican Association of New Hampshire, noted that similar rallies will take place May 1 in Nashua and all over the country. "The voices of the immigrant community are going to be heard," she said.

The Nashua rally will take place at City Hall from 3:30 to 5 PM.

"Immigrants in New Hampshire come from all over the world, where they fled from violence and desperate poverty," said Lily Mesa. "Now they are in this country working hard, paying taxes, and contributing to our communities. We deserve respect, not mistreatment."

Organizers will hold a news conference following the rally.

Life Coach to Speak at NECC Commencement

New York Times best selling author Cheryl Richardson will be the commencement speaker at Northern Essex Community College's graduation exercises on May 20, 2006, on the Haverhill campus. As the author of "Take Time for Your Life", "Life Makeovers", and "Stand Up for Your Life", and the new book "The Unmistakable Touch of Grace", Richardson seemed a natural fit to speak to NECC graduates who are embarking on their own new and continued journey to self-fulfillment. Richardson, the oldest of seven children, apprenticed in her father's tax consulting business during her early years. While she became quite adept at deciphering tax code, she was not terribly fulfilled by the job. After her father's business was destroyed by fire, she began a personal quest to find her passion, which she discovered was helping others find theirs.

Today she is a recognized life coach, best selling author, radio personality, and a regular guest on national television. "Our students will relate to Cheryl's story since many of them are planning new career paths. With her experience as a personal coach and what she learned in her own career journey, she will be the perfect person to address our graduates," says NECC President David F. Hartleb. "We look forward to what I'm sure will be an inspiring address."

Richardson was the first president of the International Coach Federation and holds one of its first Master Certified Coach credentials. She received the 2000 motivational Book Award for "Life Makeovers" from Books for a Better Life, which honors the year's most outstanding books and magazines in the self-improvement genre. Her work has been covered widely in the media including "The Today Show", "Good Morning America", "CBS This Morning", The New York Times, USA Today, Good Housekeeping, and O Magazine.

Cheryl was the team leader for the "Lifestyle Makeover Series" on the "Oprah Winfrey Show" and she accompanied Oprah on the "Live Your Best Life" nationwide tour. Richardson writes a coaching column for Body & Soul Magazine and can be heard on her internet talk radio show "Coach on Call" on www.hayouseradio.com and Sirius Satellite radio channel 114, LIME.

A POINT OF VIEW:

with the idea of amnesty, work guest programs, or early tracks to citizenship, the truth is that most of us of Latino extraction have been shocked and surprised not by the individual issues themselves, but by the strength of the "Latino identity" expressed. We may not participate of the philosophy of the demonstrators individually, that is expected and wanted, but as a group we discovered that we are no longer Mexicans, Cubans or Dominicans to mention just a few, but simply Latinos. And we all feel that the "how" we got here in the first place, legally or otherwise, is not as important or relevant as "whom" we eventually became, and we all have the sense that these new immigrants only wish to be the way we are and nothing less.

We have suddenly become aware that we are no longer individuals hidden under rocks of anonymity either afraid of detection by "the migra," or confused by our accents, or our backgrounds, but dreamers of a new and bright future America. I have the suspicion that in just a few years this new cause will not be about legality, immigration, insecurity or anger, but ideals and positive contributions of strong family values and honest work to our nation.

And what is better still, I believe that the extreme reaction of many, politicians or not, who fear this prolific new minority of over forty million and growing is an indication that we are becoming one, not many. And that new realization will never go away. The sooner we all accept that reality and work for its success, the better for all of us: This is, folks, the new United States of America. The genie cannot go back into the bottle. They never do.

If you read my words here you will fail to see any reference, never mind any advocacy, of illegal immigration. Latinos are the majority of the undocumented immigrants, but the Irish are standing up to be counted among the nation's illegal immigrants as well, and were hoping their civic appeal at the St. Patrick's Day parades would soften the debate over immigration reform that also would benefit them.

The world "legal" has legislative connotations not always necessarily moral or ethical, so in my commentaries I prefer to stay away from that term. Slavery was "legal" in the Western Hemisphere for scores of years, its last breath in Brazil in 1888; abortion, even when the health of a woman was at risk, "illegal," and still being threatened with illegality status (consider South Dakota's decision in the United States recently); consensual relations between adults, including responsible family oriented so-called mixed marriages were tantamount to breaking the law in many places. So let's stay away from the legal, long live the moral!

As a law-abiding U.S. Citizen I agree totally with the notion that our laws should be respected. But respecting the law should not stop at the borders or fences surrounding this nation. Those who would quickly chain the ankles of the undocumented to incarcerate them and throw the keys should think about adding additional links to that chain to make room for the businessmen and women within our borders who depend on them to make a buck. Then perhaps we can start a serious dialogue about legality. And yes, no one I know in South Boston has asked for a fence surrounding L Street to protect them from Irish immigrants.

Our span of attention is no longer distracted by the disturbances or disorders that characterized the histories chronicled earlier in this article. They are either complete or on the way. It may be hard to explain, never mind to believe, but the moment will come when Latino power will be seen routinely as an acceptable and important part of the history of this nation as well and what you are seeing now is just the tip of that iceberg.

And that is my point of view today.

Dr. Montesino, solely responsible for this article, is the Editor of Latino WorldOnline.com and Senior Lecturer in the Computer Information Systems Department at Bentley College, Waltham, Massachusetts.

Rep. Finegold proposes making attacks on homeless a hate crime

Citing a recent crime in which a homeless man was assaulted while sleeping on a park bench in Boston's North End, Representative Barry R. Finegold (D-Andover) has proposed legislation that will extend protection under Massachusetts' Hate Crime Statute to include homeless individuals.

Currently, the Massachusetts Hate Crime Statute makes it a crime to assault and cause injury to an individual with the intent to intimidate the person based on the person's race, color, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, or disability. Such crimes are punishable by five years in state prison and up to a ten thousand dollar fine. The proposed legislation will bring a person's housing status under the Hate Crime Statute.

Representative Finegold believes that prior to this legislation, homeless people were not afforded the same protection and recourse as other citizens, primarily due to their housing status.

"If an individual is assaulted in their home, among the many charges available to authorities are trespass, breaking and entering, or perhaps unlawful entry; all of these charges ratchet up the penalty for the assault. These are not available to authorities when a homeless person is assaulted and as a result, the punishment for the suspect may not be as severe," commented Representative Finegold.

"According to the Department of Veterans Affairs, nearly 200,000 veterans go

Update on Ashton's condition

The equine community came together to help fund Ashton's surgery, a young foal who is available for adoption at the MSPCA.

A young Clydesdale-Appaloosa foal named Ashton has had a very rough start in life. He came to the MSPCA at Nevins Farm suffering from malnutrition, ring worm, rainrot, lice, parasites and a painful abscess on the left hind leg. During the course of his rehabilitation he has had the misfortune of several common complications, all of which he has fought through with bravery and spunk. Finally, in late February the staff thought he seemed to be doing better and that his worst days were behind him. Then another health problem was noted. One of his legs began to swell and look sore. A veterinary exam and x-rays revealed OCD (Osteochondritis dessecans) in his right front ankle or fetlock. This is a bony and cartilaginous lesion in a joint that causes pain and swelling and later serious arthritis. The good news is that the problem is only present in one of his legs. And because Ashton is young and now otherwise healthy, the arthroscopic surgery to remove the lesion has a very good prognosis; a long and normal life.

Dr. Bryan Parrott, Ashton's veterinarian, said that Ashton needed to be kept quiet and confined to avoid aggravation of his problem until he could have his surgery. Keeping a young foal confined is difficult both on the foal and the handlers. So the staff made the decision to go ahead with the surgery for Ashton as soon as possible even though we had not yet raised all of the funding. Ashton's surgery performed at the New England Equine Surgical and Medical Center went very, very well. His surgeon said that he should make a full recovery.

Thanks to a number of generous individuals who gave donations to Ashton's Hope Fund, this precocious little colt has a promising future. The fund established for Ashton will continue in his name to help other horses and farm animals who need medical care. For more information about Ashton's Hope Fund please read more about it at www.mspca.org or call Brenda Hess-McAskill at 978-687-7453 X 6115, bhess-mcaskill@mspca.org or send checks to MSPCA at Nevins Farm, 400 Broadway, Methuen, MA 01844 attn. Part of the community since 1917, our companion's come in all shapes and sizes! The MSPCA at Nevins Farm cared for more than 7,000 animals last year through the work of the Equine Center, Farm and Animal Care and Adoption Centers as well as Hillside Acre Pet Loss Services. We receive no state or federal funding and rely on the support of friends in the community to continue our mission of caring for people and animals.

la religión o el origen nacional quedaba prohibido. Esa nueva Acta y legislación subsiguiente también declararon una política legislativa fuerte contra la discriminación en las escuelas públicas y las universidades que apoyaban la discriminación, de hecho ayudando a la integración." (www.law.cornell.edu)

Yo estaba en Washington D.C. en julio de 1964 y fui testigo de primera mano del nivel de regocijo de una multitud de hombres y mujeres negros que corrían entusiasmados hacia el monumento a Washington para celebrar el nacimiento de los nuevos derechos civiles. Pero no olvidemos que tomaría muchos más años, y no estamos seguros si va a tomar muchos más todavía, hasta que se eliminan el prejuicio y la discriminación en esta tierra norteamericana.

"Nuestro maltrato no era correcto y yo estaba cansada de ello," escribió Rosa Parks en su libro Quiet Strength, (Zondervan Publishing House, 1994.) "Yo no dejaba de pensar en mi madre y mis abuelos y lo fuerte que eran. Yo sabía que existía la posibilidad de ser maltratada, pero se me presentó una oportunidad de hacer lo que yo pedía hacer a otros." Las acciones de la señora Parks despertaron una nueva conciencia del poder individual y de grupo de una minoría que rechazaba ser ignorada, descontada o abusada.

Y todavía había más. "Yo sé que la excitación que comenzó en las horas tempranas de junio 28 de 1969, afuera de una barra de Greenwich Village llamada Stonewall Inn no era realmente los comienzos históricos del movimiento de los derechos de los Gay. Pero los disturbios que llegaron a llamarse "Los desórdenes de Stonewall" apparentan ser para mí simbólicos de la misma manera que la batalla de Bunker Hill o la cabalgata tarde en la noche de Paul Revere simbolizó el comienzo de la revolución norteamericana. Lo hace a uno orgulloso de identificarse con un legado que dice: "Esta bueno ya," o como dijera Popeye, "Eso es lo que puedo aguantar, porque no puedo aguantar más." (Robert N. Minor, Profesor de Estudios Religiosos, Universidad de Kansas y fundador del Proyecto de la Imparcialidad.)

El movimiento gay, ayudado por la decisión de la Corte Suprema que declaró inconstitucional las leyes contra la sodomía en los libros de algunos estados eventualmente culminó en la ley de matrimonio gay de Massachusetts y es uno de los genios salidos más recientemente de la botella. El matrimonio gay en Massachusetts es uno de esos sujetos que no son sujetos en nuestras vidas: nadie le da un segundo pensamiento a menos que usted sea gay y quiera casarse con la persona más importante de su vida.

Con este antepasado de largas e intensas batallas luchadas sobre derechos civiles en la historia de nuestra nación, somos testigos ahora de un nuevo genio que sale de una botella a la que se le ha sacado la tapa: El poder latino. La fuerza de las demostraciones de cientos de miles de latinos que demandan el fin a las amenazas de prisión o deportaciones contra inmigrantes indocumentados tiene la potencialidad de convertirse en el despliegue más grande de poder político en los Estados Unidos del siglo veintiuno.

Esté usted o no de acuerdo con la idea de una amnistía, el programa de trabajadores visitantes, o una vía rápida a la ciudadanía norteamericana, lo cierto es que la mayoría de nosotros de extracción latina estamos sobresaltados y sorprendidos no ya por los asuntos que se discuten y que podemos aceptar o rechazar, sino por la fortaleza de la identidad latina que esa conversación ha expresado.

No tenemos que participar de la filosofía de los manifestantes individualmente, eso se espera y desea, pero como grupo hemos descubierto que ya no somos solamente mexicanos, cubanos o dominicanos para mencionar a unos pocos solamente, sino simplemente latinos. Y nos hemos dado cuenta de repente que el "cómo" llegamos aquí en primer lugar no es tan importante o relevante al "quien" nos convertimos eventualmente y creemos que esos nuevos inmigrantes solamente quieren ser como lo que somos nosotros y nada más.

De repente nos hemos vuelto conscientes de que ya no somos solamente individuos escondidos bajo las piedras del anonimato o temerosos de la "migra" o confundidos por nuestros acentos regionales, o nuestros pasados, sino como soñadores de un nuevo y brillante futuro en los Estados Unidos. Yo tengo la sospecha de que en solo unos años esta causa no será sobre legalidad, inmigración, inseguridad o ira, sino sobre ideales y contribuciones positivas de valores familiares y trabajo honrado a nuestra nación.

Y lo que es todavía mejor, yo creo que la reacción extrema de muchos, políticos o no, que temen esta minoría prolífica de más de cuarenta millones y todavía creciendo, es una indicación de que nos estamos convirtiendo en uno, no en muchos. Y esa nueva realización jamás desaparecerá. Mientras más pronto aceptemos esa realidad y trabajemos con ella para que triunfe mejor lo será para todos, latinos o no. Estos son, amigos, los nuevos Estados Unidos de América. El genio no puede volver a la botella. Ellos nunca lo hacen.

Si ustedes leen todas mis palabras cuidadosamente no verán aquí en parte alguna referencia o promoción de la inmigración ilegal. Los latinos somos la mayoría de los inmigrantes indocumentados, pero los irlandeses, aunque menos en número, están incluidos igualmente entre los llamados ilegales de la nación y estaban esperanzados durante el reciente Día de San Patricio de que su participación cívica reduciría un tanto la fuerza del debate sobre la reforma migratoria para beneficiarse también.

La palabra "legal" tiene connotación legislativa, no siempre necesariamente moral o ética, así que en mis comentarios yo prefiero mantenerme alejado de esa palabra. La esclavitud era "legal" en el hemisferio occidental por muchas décadas, su último aliento en Brasil en 1888; el aborto, aunque la salud de la mujer estuviera en peligro, era "ilegal" y todavía está amenazado de ilegalidad en los Estados Unidos (vean el caso reciente de Dakota del Sur;) relaciones consensuales entre adultos, incluyendo familias muy responsables productas de los llamados matrimonios de razas mezcladas, eran el equivalente de violaciones de la ley en muchos lugares. Así que mantengámonos apartados de la palabra "legal."

Como ciudadano norteamericano que respeta la ley, yo estoy totalmente de acuerdo en venerarla. Pero respetar la ley no debe detenerse en la frontera o las cercas que rodean a esta nación. Aquellos que están listos a encadenar los tobillos de los indocumentados para encarcelarlos y "botar la llave" debían pensar seriamente en añadir eslabones a esas cadenas para crear espacio para los hombres y mujeres de negocios que dependen de la explotación de esos indocumentados para ganarse el sostén.

Tal vez sea que entonces podamos comenzar un diálogo serio sobre la legalidad. Y sí, nadie que yo conozca en South Boston ha pedido todavía que se erija una cerca alrededor de la calle "L" para protegerse de los irlandeses inmigrantes.

Nuestro nivel de interés no se encuentra distraído ahora por los disturbios y los desórdenes que caracterizaron las historias relatadas en este artículo. Ellas están completas ya o en camino. Tal vez es difícil de explicar, inclusive creer, pero el momento llegará cuando el poder latino se verá ordinariamente como una parte aceptable e importante de la historia de esta nación también. Lo que ustedes ven ahora es solo la punta del tempano de hielo en el agua.

Y ese es mi punto de vista hoy.

The 8th Annual New Paint Fundraiser

By Maria Sánchez- Kouassi
EAC Program Director

New Paint is one of the two major fundraisers that Essex Art Center holds each year. This event helps Essex Art Center exist. Without it we would not be able to offer our classes at such ridiculously low prices.

On the day of the fundraiser, 40 artists explore the city of Lawrence by brush, pencil or pastel. Their task is to complete a piece of artwork that will be auctioned off that evening at the fundraiser. During the day as they are creating, many people stop by to observe them working.

This year New Paint will be held on Saturday, June 3, 2006, at 6 p.m. at Monarch on the Merrimack located at 225 Merrimack Street in Lawrence, MA. Tickets are $50 in advance at the Essex Art Center or $60 at the door.

The theme of the night will be "the twenties" an Art-hibition of sorts ... a speakeasy.

The night will include a Buffet Dinner from 6pm-7:45pm, "the highlight" an Art Auction - Preview at 6pm, Live Auction at 8pm and Silent Auction throughout night and a Cash Bar & Music! It is a great way to support the arts in Lawrence.

If you know of anyone that may want to support Essex Art Center by attending the event, please either forward this email to them or let me know their name and address and I will be happy to mail them an invite.

Or if you are interested in volunteering, please contact our Executive Director, Leslie Costello by email or phone and she will gladly accept your services. leslie@essexartcenter.com or (978) 685-2343.

Please contact myself or Leslie if you would like more detailed information on this event and thank you for spreading the word!
